STRIKERS EVACUATE AUTO FACTORIES

Winter Frolic Opens Here Tonight

CREWS LEAVE PLANTS AMID BIG FANFARE

FLINT CELEBRATES AS LONG TIEUP CONCLUDES

Flint, Mich., Feb. 11 (AP)—Jubilant strikers marched from three General Motors plants late today with all the fanfare of a war-time armistice.

Peace had come at last to strike-vexed Flint.

The United Automobile Workers of America, moving swiftly to carry out its part of the strike peace treaty signed at noon today in Detroit, submitted the agreement to the "men in the trenches" as soon as leaders could reach this strike capital. The vote for acceptance was unanimous.

Doors of Fisher plant No. 1, heavily barricaded since Dec. 30 against attacks that never came, swung open at 5:40 p. m. in a deafening din of automobile horns and the plant whistle. The evacuation was on.

General Motors officials, moving just as swiftly to resume production, announced that the plants would reopen Monday.

Wear Heavy Beards

Two thousand men marched from the No. 1 plant, but hundreds of them had gone in during the afternoon. Best estimates were that 900 were true veterans of the prolonged strike.

Many of the men, clean shaven when the strikes began, wore heavy beards as symbols of their self-imposed 44-day incarceration.

Members of a "bearded band" played furiously on their instruments, but their efforts were nearly lost in the roar of automobile horns and the cheers.

Fifty men, as exuberant as college boys, weaved about deliriously in a snake dance.

At the head of the procession that formed rapidly was a huge American flag. Just before the men emerged a sign 100 feet long and five feet deep was lowered from the room. In mammoth red letters it proclaimed that "Victory Is Ours."

In the procession, but not at its head, were high officials of the U. A. W. A., among them Homer Martin, the president; Wyndahm Mortimer, first vice president who was a signatory to the peace treaty, and Lee Pressman, general counsel of the Committee for Industrial Organization, who also signed the strike-ending agreement.

Others Are Jubilant

There were hurried reunions with wives and children, a brief parade, and then the men clambered into automobiles and drove to Fisher plant No. 2, next in the order of evacuation, for a re-enactment of the scene.

The Fisher No. 2 plant also had been occupied for 44 days. The strike in the Chevrolet plant began on February 1. Both plants were the scenes of riots.

Almost as joyous as the strikers over the arrival of peace were city officials and the great mass of citizens who had been "innocent bystanders" in the labor strife.

Also delighted were the 3,300 national guardsmen, some of whom had been on strike duty here since January 13, although martial law never was proclaimed.

"I pray that this is the end of the strike," said Mayor Harold E. Bradshaw, who was granted virtu-

Ironwood Man Named To Democratic Slate

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 11 (AP)—Michigan Democrats ignored the selections of their leaders and picked a slate of candidates for the April election of their own choosing in their state convention here today,

Party whips and chairmen of the 17 congressional districts sat up all night to pick a ticket for the convention. The delegates, however, took matters into their own hands and named whom they pleased.

Some of the nominees were those approved by the steering committee, others were not, but it was apparent throughout the proceedings that the delegates were taking those they wanted and rejecting those they did not.

For justice of the supreme court the convention nominated Thomas F. McAllister of Grand Rapids and Walter I. McKenzie of Detroit. McAllister was on the hand-picked slate, but hotel room conferees favored A. J. Rogoski of Muskegon in place of McKenzie.

Shields Nominated

Edmund C. Shields of Lansing, Democratic national committeeman, and John D. Lynch of Detroit were nominated for regents of the University of Michigan. The steering committee had suggested Frank D. Eamon of Detroit in place of Lynch.

Charles C. Novak of Detroit was made the party candidate for member of the state board of education, although Benjamin Comfort of Detroit was the name appearing on the so-called official slate.

The balance of the ticket went according to schedule.

Murray D. VanWagoner was renominated for state highway commissioner by acclamation.

Arthur E. Erickson, superintendent of schools at Ironwood, was the convention choice for superintendent of public instruction. He was opposed for the nomination by William A. Hemmer of Saginaw and Dorr Stack of Manton. Wayne county and other industrial centers delegations supported Erickson because their leaders believed the upper peninsula was entitled to a place on the ticket.

James J. Jakeway of Berrien county and Mrs. Gerritt Masselink of Big Rapids were nominated without opposition for the state board of agriculture.

Meet Moves Fast

The convention moved swiftly and smoothly. Leaders made no attempt on the floor to force their slate upon the delegates. In no case was a record vote necessary. The tide of the balloting invariably moved so heavily in one direction that before tabulators had time to check the result, opponents of the winners moved to cast

WORKERS GIVEN PAY INCREASE

General Motors Chiefs Announce Boost After Strike Is Ended

Detroit, Feb. 11 (AP)—General Motors Corporation announced a $25,000,000 yearly wage increase today, effective February 15, and corporation officials said it was entirely independent of a strike settlement that preceded the announcement.

The increases announced in New York by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, will amount to five cents an hour.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president, said in Detroit that the move was decided upon Tuesday. That was at least 36 hours in advance of the agreement terminating prolonged strikes that had virtually paralyzed production.

The General Motors announcement follows by two days a Chrysler Corp. wage increase averaging approximately 10 per cent and amounting to $13,000,000 or $14,000,000 a year.

Wages Above Level

There was no indication that the Ford Motor Co. intended to follow suit. A member of the Ford organization said that wage increases with it are "a continuous process" and that its wage rates "are still well above those of the other companies."

The last general Ford increase, two years ago, raised the minimum wage to the pre-depression level of $6 a day.

Both General Motors and Chryshave announced that average wages are well above the highest levels prevailing before the depression. Today's statement said that the impending increase would make the General Motors average approximately 25 per cent in excess of the highest prevailing pre-depression period.

John L. Lovett, manager of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association, said in connection with the Chrysler increase that "there is a general tendency to approach an average minimum of 75 cents an hour for men and 65 cents for women employes among Detroit manufacturers generally." He said he believed "the Chrysler wage increase is based on this general average."

Sloan's Statement

Sloan's statement today said: "In view of the corporation's expressed policy of maintaining at all times the highest justifiable wage scale, and in harmony with other increases that have just been made in the automobile industry, it will again increase wages five cents per hour in all plants in the United States now in operation, as of February 15, 1937, and in all plants now now in operation at such time as same may be reopened.

"Detailed announcements will be made on an individual plant basis.

"It will be recalled that on November 9, an increase also was granted.

"The total increase in wages, to be dispersed on a normal yearly basis as the result of the proposed new increases now being put into effect will be $25,000,000. November and February increases together, on the same basis, will amount to approximately $55,000,000. The corporation's average wage rate, giving weight to the above increase, will be approximately 25 per cent in excess of the highest prevailing in the pre-depression period."

The November wage increase also amounted to five cents an hour. At the same time, the company announced distribution of a $10,000,000 "Christmas appreciation fund" to employes.

VICTIMS DIED OF DROWNING

Investigation Reveals Plane Passengers Alive at Crash

San Francisco, Feb. 11 (AP)—Mute evidence that death overtook them as they struggled in the submerged wreckage of a skyliner came tonight from autopsy examinations of four of the 11 persons who died when the giant transport plunged into the waters of San Francisco bay.

While four agencies dug silently into the available evidence for the crash cause, the post mortem examinations showed all four of the victims whose bodies have been recovered thus far were alive after the plane struck, and that at least three of them died by drowning.

Although the plane struck within a few seconds of its projected landing time, the Oakland Tribune said investigators had discovered its landing gear had not been let down to landing position, and that its wing flaps, designed to slow the landing speed, were not adjusted for that purpose.

Misjudged Height?

Investigators thus far have theorized that Pilot A. R. "Tommy" Thompson, veteran United Air Lines flier, possibly misjudged his altitude or inadvertently permitted the plane to stall, and that it struck the water at high speed and flopped over on its back.

Dr. Joseph N. Dallal said his examination of the body of Mark Fontana, San Francisco food manufacturer, revealed a terrific struggle to survive.

"The head was quite ruddy and the veins distended," said Dr. Dallal, "showing a desperate effort was made. Examination shows he was fully conscious—not even dazed—after the terrific impact, but as to how long he fought, I cannot say.

"The fact that the artificial teeth were intact and in place indicated no relaxation. Had he been unconscious, the teeth would have had a tendency to slip.

"There was considerable water in the lungs."

William Crobby, San Mateo county coroner, agreed with Dallal that Fontana drowned, and theorized that the manufacturer, as well as the other passengers, might have floated or fought clear of the wreck only to perish in the cold, muddy water.

QUEEN TO BE GIVEN CROWN AT CEREMONY

FIREWORKS DISPLAY ALSO PLANNED AT ICE RINK

With a colorful coronation ceremony as the first event on the three-day program, the second annual Escanaba Winter Frolic will open this evening at the huge rink in Ludington park. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mary Alice Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy of Escanaba, will be crowned as queen of the Escanaba Winter Frolic with an impressive ritual to be staged on the attractively-lighted ice throne on the south side of the rink. The coronation address will be delivered over the loud speaker system by Arthur Courtney White, retired Broadway stage actor, who is now residing in this city.

Taking a prominent part in ceremonies will be the queen's attendants: Marjorie Kolb, Helen Mae Hedin, Louella Gerou, Irene Thompson, Jean Sullivan and Delvina Hebert. Eight little girls, moving about on skates, will serve as pages. They are: Virginia Larson, Lenore Olson, Catherine Molignoni, Patricia Richter, Jean Baker, Marguerite Westbrook, Mary Anderson and Laverne Hogan. The crown and scepter bearers will be Marilyn and Jean Groos.

WANT RINK CLEAR

While the coronation ceremony is in progress this evening the ice covered space at the Ludington park ring will be kept free of spectators. No parking of cars on the roadway adjacent to the rink will be allowed. This regulation is to be enforced in order to provide more standing room on the north side of the rink directly across from the ice throne.

Fancy Skating Exhibition

Arthur J. Goulais, president of the Escanaba Winter Sports association, will introduce Lawrence J. Jacobs, president of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, who will deliver an address of welcome from the icy rostrum. He will in turn introduce Mr. White.

Mrs. Carl Turnquist, the former Hildur Dahlberg of Escanaba, who arrived yesterday morning from her home in Eveleth, Minn., will give an exhibition of figure skating after the queen is presented with the crown and members of her court are introduced. Following this, the queen and her attendants will go through a routine on the rink.

Fireworks Display

A spectacular fireworks program will be presented, to be followed by the Queen's waltz, in which all skaters will be invited to participate.

Saturday will be children's day at the winter frolic. Under the supervision of the WPA recreational division, a program of competitive events, including speed skating, dog races, sliding, skiing, tobogganing and tug-of-wars, will be held. An attractive trophy will be awarded to the school, whose students win the most points.

President Is Unable to Win Nebraskan on Court Change

Washington, Feb. 11. (AP)—President Roosevelt failed today to convince his old independent ally, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, that naming new men to the supreme court is the best way to meet the tribunal's opposition to new deal enactments.

Last of a number of senators summoned to the White House during the day, Norris told reporters afterward that he would support the president's judicial proposals only as a last resort.

He said he saw "danger" in the proposed legislation in that it would empower the chief executive to create a new supreme court overnight.

Norris agreed with the president that a constitutional amendment would take too long to meet the present situation.

Favors New Act

As an immediate alternative to the presidential proposals, Norris said he favored an act of congress providing that a mere majority of high court could not declare laws unconstitutional.

He said his own state has a law requiring that five of seven members of the state court must agree before it can hold a law unconstitutional.

"We have been living under that law quite a number of years

"On the Record"

On Further Thought

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

If the American people accept this last audacity of the President without letting out a yell to high heaven, they have ceased to be jealous of their liberties and are ripe for ruin.

This is the beginning of pure personal government. Do you want it? Do you like it? Look around about the world—there are plenty of examples—and make up your mind.

The Executive is already powerful by reason o fhis overwhelming victory in November, and will be strengthened even more if the reorganization plan for the Administration, presented some weeks ago, is adopted. We have to all intents and purposes a one-party Congress, dominated by the President. Although nearly 40 per cent of the voters repudiated the New Deal at the polls, they have less than 20 per cent representation in both houses of Congress. And now the Supreme Court is to have a majority determined by the President and by a Senate which he dominates.

When that happens we will have a one-man government. It will all be constitutional. So, he claims, is Herr Hitler.

* * *

Leave the personality and the intentions of the President out of the picture. They are not the crux of this issue. He may be wise as Solon, lofty at Plato, and pure as Parsifal. He may have the liberties of the American people deeply at heart. But he will have a successor, who may be

Acceptance Of Peace Pact Is End of Tie-up

By The Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 11—Formal acceptance of peace terms ended today the most widespread strike ever to paralyze American automobile assembly lines.

The eight-point agreement signed by representatives of General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America composed many of the differences aired in 44 days of bitter labor dispute.

Remaining issues will be negotiated in discussions between corporation and union starting Feb. 16.

The union was accorded recognition as representing its members in the corporation's 69 automotive plants. In twenty plants where strikes are in progress, General Motors agreed not to bargain, without the sanction of the governor of the state, with any other group on "matters of general corporation policy."

More than 100,000 idle employes of the nation's largest motor car producer will return to their jobs next week at wages increased 5 cents an hour. The wage increase, approximating $25,000,000 annually, was announced by General Motors coincident with the strike settlement.

Plants Evacuated

Union officers evacuated several hundred sit-down strikers in Fisher Body comany plants at Flint, Mich., "trouble center" of the dispute, where riots caused 3,300 Michigan national guardsmen to be concentrated. These strikers defied two court injunctions to held their position since Dec. 30.

General Motors agreed to dismissal of injunction proceedings against the union, its officers and members at Flint and Cleveland, Ohio. The Flint injunction had made the union men liable to a $15,000,000 penalty.

The ceremonies of signing the peace pact in a crowded recorder's court room in the county building here came as an anti-climax to the dramatic announcement at 2:35 a. m. by Michigan's 43-year-old bachelor governor, red-headed Frank Murphy, that—

"An agreement has been reached."

Lewis In Bed

This brief statement in a downtown hotel where John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization, participated in final conferences at the bedside where he lay ill with a severe cold, ended eight days and nights of meetings which Murphy arranged at "the wish of the president."

And after three leaders of the opposing sides affixed their signatures to the settlement today, President Roosevelt telegraphed to Murphy "the thanks of the nation" for "a high public service nobly performed."

Less than 500 words were required to state the peace terms that halted a nation-wide industrial strife in automobile palnts, and made possible the resumption of operations in General Motors units which William S. Knudsen, executive vice president, predicted would reach a speed of 225,000 cars and trucks in March.

The corporation agreed:

To recognize the U. A. W. A. as collective bargaining agency for its members.

To Reopen Plants

To reopen as soon as possible all its plants on strike or otherwise idle.

To exercise no discrimination or prejudice against any employe because of his activity in the union or the strike.

To consent to dismissal of injunction proceedings against the union, its officers and members, and to discontinue contempt actions instituted under these injunctions.

The union pledged:

To "forthwith terminate" the strike and evacuate all striker-

"NO CROWING"

Detroit, Feb. 11 (AP)—"There is now crowing on either side."

So said William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors corporation, this afternoon, a short time after he had affixed his signature to the peace pact between the corporation and its striking workers.

"What we think is most important is to get people back to work and get the plants running again," he said.

"You know that when a big machine is stopped you have to monkey with the flywheel a bit before you get it going again. That flywheel has to be tolerance. There must be a desire for peace and no animosity on either side."

(By The Associated Press)

Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), said after a White House conference that he believed the president's judicial proposals were not the best way to meet the supreme court's opposition to new deal laws.

Officers of the American Federation of Labor declared John L. Lewis, rival labor leader, had lost ground in the settlement of the General Motors strike.

The president signed a bill creating a $20,000,000 government corporation to make loans to flood sufferers.

The senate civil liberties committee heard that General Motors discontinued industrial spy services after the committee's investigation began.

Treasury figures showed the nation's 129,000,000 inhabitants would have to pay an average of $267.37 each to wipe out the national debt.

The supreme court heard three challenges to the constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act.

6 PERSONS DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Tri-Motored Ship Hits Market Place in Germany

Berlin, Feb. 11 (AP)—Six persons died today when a tri-motored army plane, cut off from a nearby landing field by a curtain of driving snow, crashed into a crowded Berlin market place and burst into flames near a case of circus lions.

Five of the dead were occupants of the plane. The sixth was a trolley conductor, burned fatally by a charged wire which the plane ripped away.

Panic swept the square for an hour, and the roar of the 15 lions, part of a traveling circus, rose above the cries of terrified trolley passengers and pedestrians.

The plane fell about a half mile from new barracks of the regiment named after Adolf Hitler's aide, Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, and a short distance from a wide meadow in Schiller park which offered safe landing had the pilots been able to find it.

The plane, enroute from Stargard to Jueterbog, was several miles off its course. Residents of the Tiergarten section reported seeing its skirt housetops, apparently seeking a landing place, a few minutes before the crash into one of the city's busiest intersections.

Lieutenants Schultze and Hajok were piloting the plane, the air ministry announced. The other occupants were an engineer and two corporals.

The military cleared away the wreckage and traffic was restored to normal one hour after the crash.

and our liberties have not been taken away," he added.

As a long-time remedy, which he said he would push regardless of the presidential proposals, the Nebraskan favored a constitutional amendment limiting the terms of supreme court justices.

Norris' expression was a blow to some administration supporters who had believed he might be won whole-heartedly to the proposed reorganization.

Compromise Seen

The stand taken by the 75-year old independent, whom Mr. Roosevelt supported against a Democratic opponent in last fall's election, immediately revived speculation as to a possible compromise.

Chairman Sumners (D-Tex) announced postponement of a scheduled meeting of the judiciary committee until next Tuesday.

Asked why, he laughingly replied:

"The visibility is not good; the barometer is low and the wind is not in the right direction, so we decided not to take off today. Perhaps the atmosphere will clear by next Tuesday."

Representative Harlan (D-Ohio) rose in the house to defend the president.

He said Mr. Roosevelt was trying to "unpack the supreme court, not to pack it."

As to contentions that the president dominates congress and now seeks to dominate the courts, Harlan said that in the Hoover administration congress was not dominated by the president but by the Manufacturers' association, the Anti-Saloon league, the Chamber of Commerce and other 'lobbies.'"

Representative Michener (R-Mich) reminded him that President Hoover appointed Supreme Court Justice Cardozo, known generally as a liberal.

"It must have been in a moment of mental aberration," Harlan retorted.

Pike's Peak was named after Zebulon Pike, but it was known to white men as early as 1700, long before his birth.

LEWIS FORCED TO SURRENDER

Foes of CIO Leader of Opinion His Group Lost Ground

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP)—John L. Lewis' foes within the American Federation of Labor contended tonight that he suffered a severe defeat in the General Motors strike just ended.

Soon after the peace was signed, President William Green of the Federation issued a statement expressing "regret" that Lewis had been forced to "surrender."

While Lewis argued that the Automobile Workers had won a major victory, Green said Lewis did not win his fight for recognition of his union as the exclusive bargaining agent for employes in 20 plants.

The lesson to be learned from the General Motors strike, Green told reporters, was that "in a fight of this kind the solidarity of all labor in the United States and Canada is needed."

"The whole army of labor is injured to some extent when a division of labor sustains a defeat," he added.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, said the country should have a better way of settling such disputes. He said the strike cost workers and management $2,000,000 a day for 42 days.

With the General Motors strike settled, Lewis now will try to win higher wages and shorter hours for about 400,000 members of the United Mine Workers in the bituminous coal fields.

Secretary Perkins, in a statement today on the auto strike settlement, said both union and management were "to be praised for their give-and-take spirit and for their sober sense of fairness and responsibility to those they represented and to the general public."

Feb. 2—Judge Paul V. Gadola at Flint issued new injunction, giving strikers 24 hours to leave under $15,000,000 penalty; picketing barred.

Feb. 3—New conference of General Motors and union representatives opened in Detroit; evacuation deadline passed at Flint with strikers holding positions.

Feb. 5—Sheriff Wolcott given eviction order but no action taken against "stay-in" strikers as Detroit conference continued.

Feb. 6—Gov. Murphy announced parley deadlocked over union demand for recognition as sole bargaining agency in 20 strike-bound General Motors plants; conference continued.

held plants.

To exhaust possibility of negotiation of grievances before calling any strike, during the collective bargaining agreement contemplated in further conferences, and not to solicit members on company premises or to coerce or intimidate employes.

To refrain from calling strikes or interfering with production pending the further negotiations.

Both corporation and union agreed to bargain collectively starting February 16 on the union demands listed on January 4 by Homer Martin, union president, in a letter to Knudsen.

To Consult Murphy

The corporation pledged in a letter to Governor Murphy that for a period of six months it would not negotiate with any employe representation group except the U. A. W. A. in twenty plants where strikes have occurred, without first consulting the governor, and receiving from him "the sanction of any such contemplated procedure as being justified by law, equity or justice toward the group of employes so represented."

Remaining for negotiation in the conferences which will start next Tuesday in the General Motors building here are such union demands as: abolition of piece-work systems of pay; a 30-hour week, six-hour day and pay and a half for overtime; a "minimum rate of pay commensurate with an American standard of living"; seniority rights, and agreement on speed of production between the management and a union shop committee.

Knudsen announced he believed the negotiations could be concluded in less than 15 days, the period once set for such conferences by the since-violated "Lansing agreement" nearly a month ago. His associates in the meetings, he said, would be C. E. Wilson, his general assistant, and H. W. Anderson, head of the corporation's industrial relations department.

Knudsen said any benefits given one group in the negotiations would apply likewise to all other employes.

Knudsen, predicting the corporation's plants will be operating at full capacity within 12 days, said General Motors expects to carry heavy production longer into the summer this year than ever before due to the strike effects, in order "to fill the huge backlog of orders we have."

By the end of January, in which General Motors produced approximately 85,000 units, its passenger car production was almost entirely stopped.

The main problem now, Knudsen said, is "to get people back to work, to get them some income and to get the public some cars."

Both General Motors and union leaders expressed satisfaction at the agreement. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., corporation president who once participated briefly in conversations with Secretary Perkins at Washington in a strike conciliation effort, said it "is in complete support with the principles upon which General Motors has stood since the beginning of this unfortunate controversy."

Lewis, C. I. O. head and strike generalissimo who also talked with Secretary Perkins before joining Murphy's conference here, termed it "another milestone on labor's march." Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president who was a signer for the union, said, "it provides for better working conditions and greater harmony which we hope will continue for many years."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor which suspended C. I. O. unions last year because of their insistence on organizing labor by industries, and telegraphed Murphy recently expressing hope that rights of craft unionists would be preserved, said Lewis "surrendered." He expressed regret that the U. A. W. A. failed to obtain "recognition of the closed shop principle."

Murphy, obviously wearied by the lengthy negotiations, described the settlement as an "advance in the handling of industrial conflicts."

He said "there were two obvious paths to follow—the one of force and fanaticism or the movement by calm reasoning and good faith. We chose the latter."

The governor's comment was made in a brief radio broadcast from the courtroom where the agreement had been signed an hour previous. Before the microphone was set up, Murphy covered his face with his hands and put his head on the desk, apparently near sleep. He roused himself to make the address.

Murphy expressed his gratefulness to James F. Dewey, federal labor department conciliator who has been active in negotiations since the early stages of the strikes and was a participant in the final conferences.

General Motors, in announcing the $25,000,000 wage increase today, said the "corporation's average wage rate giving weight to the above increase will be approximately 25 percent in excess of the highest prevailing in the pre-depression period."

LIVING COSTS UP

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Wage earners' living costs in the United States advanced nine-tenths of one per cent in January over December, a monthly survey by the national industrial conference board, issued today, indicated.

NEGRO PORTER FOUND GUILTY

Major Green Must Die in Electric Chair for Murder

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Major Green, 33-year-old bathtub slayer of Mrs. Mary Case, was convicted of first degree murder tonight by a jury in Queens county court. A death sentence is mandatory.

The conviction came a month to the day after the wiry negro porter bludgeoned to death the pretty housewife in her Jackson Heights apartment and left her body in the bathtub where her husband, a hotel accountant, found it.

The jury of middle-aged men, all married, took three hours and one minute to decide the fate of Green, whose lawyers admitted he had done the brutal murder and attempted only to save him from the electric chair.

The killer had been almost impassive throughout the trial except for a brief moment today when he rose in the courtroom to shout his denial that he had ever seen the detective who detailed his story of how he beat Mrs. Case to death with a hammer.

When the verdict was announced, Green's jaw tensed, his lips tightened.

Sentence will be passed February 19 in the same courthouse where Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray were sentenced to death for the sashweight murder of her husband.

Former Candidate For President Dies

West Branch, Mich., Feb. 11. (AP)—Robert R. Pointer, People's Progressive party presidential candidate in 1924, died here today at the age of 75.

Accepting the nomination after Henry Ford had refused it, Pointer announced that if he were elected he would insist that everybody call him "Bob" and Mrs. Pointer said she would boom oatmeal porridge as the national breakfast dish. Pointer did not file qualifying petitions and his name did not reach the ballots.

He ran as a Republican candidate for gubernatorial nomination in 1928, but withdrew from the race before the primary election.

Pointer was a native of Eaton county and once a lumberman in this vicinity. After 40 years in Detroit and Dearborn he returned to West Branch "where a man can smoke a good cigar and spit in the grass."

His widow, a daughter and three sons survive him. The funeral will be conducted Saturday at Dearborn.

Carl Sandburg Ill With Bronchitis

Harbert, Mich., Feb. 11. (AP)—Carl Sandburg, the poet, has been ill of acute bronchitis since Sunday, his wife said today. She said the 59-year-old writer had been ordered to remain within doors for about 10 days more, but that he was recovering satisfactorily.

Early in his illness, Mrs. Sandburg said, there was fear of pneumonia developing, but no such complication occurred.

ally dictatorial powers last week when long-continued tension threatened to flare into violence. "I hope that the city will get back to normal as soon as possible."

Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott, obviously relieved that the necessity for service of court writs requiring the arrest of the strikers was permanently removed, said that "I have always been confident that this strike would be settled peacefully."

The General Motors program of quick restoration of production schedules was taken as an indication that most of the 43,000 persons idle here because of the strikes would return to work next week.

MANY CHANGES ARE PROPOSED

Elliott Suggests State Education Program Be Revamped

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 11 (AP)—Michigan's educational system was the subject of numerous proposed changes today at the Michigan Council on Education meeting.

Among them were Dr. Eugene B. Elliott's suggestion that his position as state superintendent of public instruction be taken out of politics. He proposed the constitution be amended to empower the state board of education to appoint the superintendent.

Other suggestions from Dr. Elliott were modification or repeal of the teachers' oath of allegiance law, higher salaries for teachers through limitation of purposes for which state aid funds might be used, and enactment of a tenure law.

Paul V. Sangren, president of Western State Teachers college at Kalamazoo, advocated increasing the power of the state board of education to return teachers' salaries to "normal."

Chester F. Miller, Saginaw superintendent of schools, proposed a state appropriation of $7,000,000 to finance a survey looking toward "balancing" the state's education program.

These officers were eelcted: Chairman, Harold F. Hunt, Kalamazoo; vice chairman, David D. Henry, Detroit; secretary, Lee M. Thurston, Lansing; executive committee, Chester F. Miller, Saginaw; Paul T. Rankin, Detroit; Ottilia Firsch, Saginaw, and A. J. Phillips, Lansing.

LINDYS IN TRIPOLI

Tripoli, Libya, Feb. 11 (AP)—The flying Lindberghs came to this north African city today from Sicily for a visit with Gen. Italo Balbo, governor of Libya.

Balbo, who led the great mass flight of Italian planes from Italy to Chicago back in 1933, welcomed the American aviator and his wife at his palace, where they will remain during their stay.

Scientists contend that women are superior to men in those mental tasks which require quick thinking and attention to details.

All but one Baldwin township officer has been nominated for reelection without opposition, but the presence of two candidates for the office of justice of the peace will make it necessary to hold a township primary next month. BUSINESSMEN FAVOR PAVING

C-C Poll Shows Only 9 Against Improvement of Alleys

A questionnaire sent out by the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce to owners of property abutting on the alleys on the north and south sides of Ludington street in the business district shows that by far the majority of the business men of the city favor the proposal to pave the two alleys in question. The paving of the alleys will allow store door deliveries of merchandise to the rear of business places and so eliminate the heavy truck traffic hazard on the principal business street.

Of the questionnaires returned to the Chamber of Commerce office, thirty-five favor alley paving while only nine have declared themselves opposed to the improvement.

In stating his stand in favor of paving, W. J. Hanrahan said: "Because I think it is the thing to do. It makes for more sanitary conditions, will help parking conditions on Ludington street and will give work to men who need work. The cost is low enough and having five years to pay is fair."

Mrs. Emma Drush, 1219 First avenue south, asserted: "It will make a wonderful improvement for all property owners both on Ludington and First avenue south and north."

Edward F. Erickson's comment was: "Excellent idea. Would like alley paved between Fourth and Ffth streets, south of First avenue south at this low cost plan."

"(1) Safety first; (2) traffic congestion will be eliminated; (3) increase business for merchants on Ludington street; (4) will make street more attractive," were the reasons listed by Gerald J. Cleary.

F. O. Beck said: "To enable all possible truck traffic to go throug alleys and take this load off the main street."

"The sooner, the better. Always have been in favor," said Charles Thompson.

A Forestry Problem

HIDDEN away in a brief address at the Canadian Lumbermen's Association annual meeting at Ottawa this month was a statement of outstanding importance to the newsprint and publishing industries of Canada and the United States.

Unless, said Dr. Gryse, of the entomological branch of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, something drastic is done to check the ravages of the European sawfly, there was not much more hope for the spruce forests of the Dominion than there was 20 years ago, when the spruce budworm destroyed 200,000,000 cords of spruce and balsam.

A major calamity thus faces Canada, Dr. Gryse continued, something that is likely to be felt by everybody. The newsprint sections of Ontario will be especially hard hit.

The forest situation has caused much uneasiness to all who have any knowledge of the outlook. It is true that 20,000,000 parasites were liberated last year by the Department of Agriculture to fight the sawfly, but there have been no reports of these doing effective work in stopping the danger.

The preservation of the forests left in Canada is probably the nation's most pressing problem. Newsprint is Canada's greatest and most valuable article of export. To further jeopardize its future is unthinkable, said Dr. Gryse. What with fire, sawfly, and the new policy of the free export of pulpwood, thinking Canadians are wondering what is in store for the Dominion. The speaker said that the time has come to wake up in Canada and face the facts, and he asserted that he has yet to meet the woodsman who accepts the government's optimistic estimate of Canada's forest wealth.

Winter Frolic Opens

THE second annual Escanaba Winter Frolic will open tonight with impressive coronation ceremonies at which Miss Mary Alice Kennedy will be formally installed as queen to reign during the three-day program of festivities.

Since the beginning of the winter, Escanaba has been the scene of much outdoor sport activity largely because of the stimulus furnished by the Escanaba Winter Sports association. The frolic will mark the high point of the season's program, and promises to bring crowds of spectators and participants from the surrounding district.

It probably will be several years before Escanaba can develop into a winter sports resort, which will draw tourists from the metropolitan centers, but much that is worthwhile has been accomplished in providing healthful recreation for our own citizens. This has been a most enjoyable winter for many people. Escanaba certainly is a busy community the year round.

Cars For Campers

THE London and North Eastern Railway of Great Britain, which runs through some of the best English fishing districts, is no longer scrapping its old passenger coaches.

Outdated cars are now withdrawn from train service, provided with berths for six or more people, and the compartments which are a feature of day travel in England are knocked together to form living rooms.

The cars are placed on little-used sidings where there is good bathing, fishing and boating, and where the campers can find access to fresh water, milk, butter and eggs. In some cases special dead-end sidings have been constructed for the purpose at likely locations.

As the result of a trial season or two which have proved very successful, many improvements have been made. Car interiors have been remodeled, better lighting installed and extra equipment provided, including linen, dishes, kitchen utensils and deck chairs.

Other railway lines have taken up the scheme, and all the rail lines of Great Britain and Ireland are being explored for suitable sites. The total on all lines in the British Isles now devoted to camping purposes is about 325 coaches, with accommodations for nearly 2,000 people. Over 100 additional camping coaches will have been made ready for the 1937 summer season.

Rental charges for the coaches vary from $12.50 to $30 a week, and at the latter figure six people are accommodated. Current opinions are that the idea has only begun to be developed, and that it will spread further not only through Great Britain but on the continent of Europe.

Fights For Safety

THE Americanism Commission of the American Legion, long active in the cause of traffic safety, has released two talking-slide-films dealing with that vital subject. Entitled "Inertia" and "The Other Fellow," they are an important contribution to promoting wider understanding of the cause and cure of the traffic accident problem.

"Inertia" is an interesting and unusual presentation of why it is necessary to exercise care at the wheel of a motor car. It describes the physical laws of motion and how they affect automobile driving. It emphasizes that we are so accustomed to the power plant we call the automobile that we consistently tend to undervalue the force it harbors.

The second film, "The Other Fellow," is a dramatic treatment of community responsibility for traffic accidents. Not the other fellow, alone, but all of us are responsible for the mounting toll of death and injury because of failure to discharge responsibilities of enforcement, engineering, education, self-discipline. The film describes how a number of American cities are coping effectively with their traffic problems, and shows that any community, with intelligence and determination, can do the same.

The films were made possible by the financial support of trade groups within the automotive industry, and produced with the cooperation of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. Six hundred copies of the productions are being distributed countrywide through state departments of the American Legion. The Legion is showing the films to its members and will arrange showings for other interested groups in the community.

It is peculiarly fitting that the great organization which grew out of a carnage should now be engaged actively in a war the primary purpose of which is to save lives.

Toward Security

MANY people have feared that because the government has begun a social security program, private insurance companies would suffer.

People will say "let the government do it," such reasoners maintain. Well, the social security act has been in sight and preparing to go into operation all through 1936, and—

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. closed the year with more life insurance in force than ever before, more than 21 billions of it. And 28,400,000 people were holding the 42,990,980 policies.

That's usually the way. Government insurance during the World War simply introduced the idea to thousands who never thought of it before. Government sale of Liberty Bonds made potential security customers of millions. Government sale in the TVA of cheap electrical equipment caused a big jump in sale of both power and equipment by private companies.

So it may prove with social security. Millions who never thought much about it before now are thinking. And millions not covered, or inadequately covered by the program as it stands, will be reaching out for means to protect themselves further. The government program may well prove not a competitor, but an educator and a stimulus.

AROUND THE PENINSULA

(Ironwood Globe)

"IT IS the history of practically all communities," commented Mayor C. H. Tripp of Ishpeming when a member of his council said the city must either increase the city's tax rate or boost the valuations. Ishpmeing is fearful of running out of funds two months before the end of the fiscal year. Ironwood is in worse shape. Several other cities of the Peninsula are hard pressed. The notable exception is Marquette, which, aside from the fact that it can more readily obtain funds, seems to have the most businesslike rule.

If the state tourist advertising bill is passed, about $4,000 will be refunded to civic groups in the Peninsula which have made appropriations for advertising in connection with the program of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau. The provision has been made that the refund to any organization in no case shall exceed 35 per cent of the bill.

Thomas Jeffery, deputy state fire marshal of Ironwood, would not lose his position despite that he is a Republican if insurance companies operating in the state had anything to say about it. Jeffery is exceptionally well qualified to investigate suspected arson cases and there have been few fires of incendiary origin that he has not solved in the Upper Peninsula counties. One of the reasons for Jeffery's success is his keen interest in the solution of crimes.

Purchase by the Robbins Flooring company of the Northwestern Cooperage and Lumber company's flooring plant in Gladstone probably will be a severe blow to Newberry. The Robbins concern recently had a $100,000 fire at Newberry and the Gladstone purchase is accepted as an indication the Newberry plant will not be rebuilt. So Gladstone gains an industry and Newberry loses one.

Federal and county officers arrested three Menominee county men last week for liquor law violations, seizing two moonshine stills and equipment and supplies used in the manufacture of moonshine. If they are found guilty in federal court, the Peninsula will again be forcefully reminded that Judge Raymond does not tolerate moonshining. His forceful reminder comes in the form of stiff sentences.

Judge Frank A. Bell of circuit court sentenced a Bagley man to pay a fine of $150 and court costs of $50 when he admitted he cut timber on tax delinquent land in the face of warning from conservation officers that he was violating the law. He offered this rather novel excuse, "I thought they couldn't stop me without an injunction." And Judge Bell responded in a rather novel manner when he said: "That's silly—as silly as a thief who says he has a right to steal from your home unless you serve an injunction to stop him."

That foreign community in which huge coins of stone are used would not be the most propitious place to sing "Pennies from Heaven."

World Affairs Reviewed

BY J. J. BOSDAN

Hitler's dream of an all-Spain conquest during the last few weeks has driven Britain and Mussolini to a more friendly attitude in spite of the confab so loudly advertised between the world's two greatest sword-rattlers. Mussolini is not quite satisfied with his brother dictator's recent utterances. Hitler, ably assisted by Dr. Schacht, his economic dictator, has been increasing the tempo of his demands for the return of Germany's colonies.

Hitler

Mussolini now has all the colonies he cried for and perhaps he has more than he can handle. He is no longer sympathetic with Hitler's colonial hankerings. What Mussolini needs is cash to exploit his Abyssinian resources.

London, the capital of international finance, is always ready to lend cash at a profit. There are great possibilities for British capital to exploit Abyssinia through Italy. Italy no longer hankers for colonies that belong to Britain.

London now can assist Mussolini and Mussolini is in dire need of financial assistance.

But Britain had a deeper motive in recently making friends with Mussolini. She was disturbed over the recent loud demands of the German Fuhrer and his military and economic dictators for the return of Germany's colonies.

Dr. Schacht claims that an industrial nation like Germany, that depends for twenty-five percent of her raw material on foreign markets, must have colonies where she can buy her essential goods in her own currency. But when the claims of Hitler and Schacht are closely examined, their cries for the return of Germany's colonies are revealed in their true light—the Germans are casting hungry eyes on British possessions.

—GERMAN IMPORTS—

Germany imports twenty-five important materials: wool, silk, rubber, tin, sisal, asbestos, copper, antimony, cotton, flax, chromium, jute, mercury, hemp, bauxite, manganese, lead, nickel, petrol, phosphates, tungsten, vanadium, platinum, molybdenum and manila.

Of these twenty-five essential raw materials, petrol, cotton, rubber and copper are indispensable. If it were possible to cut the supply of these to any nation, that nation's economic collapse would be a certainty.

Tungsten, vanadium, chromium and molybdenum, nickel and manganese are essential in the production of steel.

In one of the former German colonies are any of these essential raw materials to be found. In order to satisfy Hitler's demands for all these materials, not only Britain but Soviet Russia and the United States of America would have to share their territories and homelands with Germany.

Britain controls the world's rubber output in her Malaya territory, but Malaya is not one of the lost German colonies. While Britain controls 46 percent of the world's rubber output at Malaya, Holland controls forty percent in the Dutch East Indies.

—SELF-SUFFICIENT NATIONS—

It may be said that America and Soviet Russia are the only two countries that are practically self-sufficient in raw materials. Yet America imports rubber and Russia imports rubber and cotton. In another few years Russia will be independent of foreign cotton.

Nearly sixty percent of the world's oil supply is produced in America, twelve percent is produced in Russia, ten percent in Venezuela, and the remainder in other smaller countries.

Russia produces sixty percent of the world's manganese, the Gold Coast twelve percent, and India fourteen percent. Hitler needs manganese, but manganese is not produced in former German colonies.

America and Canada together produce twenty-nine per cent of the world's copper, Chile twenty percent, and Northern Rhodesia twelve percent. No copper mines are located in Germany's lost colonies.

Britain, faced with Dr. Schacht's demands for free access, in Germany's own currency, to a supply of the world's raw material, is beginning to weigh the significance of this systematic outcry.

The two other "Have Nations"—America and Russia—are inaccessible to the three "Have Nots"—Germany, Japan and Italy. But British possessions and colonies, political sub-divisions and commonwealths are right athwart the paths of the three great "Have Nots." Britain has satisfied one of the noisy "Have Nots"—Italy—and she must now take up the delicate job of either giving reasonable satisfaction to Germany or isolating that country from Italy and letting Hitler hit his head against the Soviet brick wall.

In the Far East Japan, too, is crying for sources of raw material. This has driven Holland into the arms of Britain.

There is, of late, a new apprehension in London that Hitler has gone too far in his colonial demands, and even the Labor Press has become impatient of Britain's fondling attitude towards the Nazi Foreign Policy.

It is not her lost colonies Germany wants. Actually Hitler's hungry eyes are cast on British territories where the German need for essential raw materials could largely be satisfied.—The World-Wide News Service.

"WAR MEMOIRS OF DAVID LLOYD GEORGE: FINAL MONTHS OF THE WAR"; (Little Brown).

THE sixth, and according to the promise in the first line of the preface, the last volume of David Lloyd George's war memoirs is published today in this country. Thus ends Lloyd George's generous defense of his course in the war, and his often ungenerous criticism of his colleagues and subordinates. As for the merit of his product:

JOHN SELBY

"The only merit I claim for these volumes is that apart from the official histories of the war, they are the most carefully and richly documented account of the Great Armageddon."

There is no space here to do more than summarize the book. It covers the year 1918, beginning with the conference at Beauvais which gave Foch supreme command, and passes through the second battle of the Marne, the effects of Russian collapse, the concluding campaigns in the Near East, the coming of peace, a long section of general reflections, an indictment of the conduct of the generals who kept out of danger they forced their men to share, and a slashing indictment of Haig, based on the latter's diaries as edited by Duff Cooper. Lloyd George does not attempt to defend the treaty which ended the war, nor to discuss it.

Once again the impression is of an agile mind busily preparing its life work for judgment by posterity. It is not fair to say that Lloyd George seems to think everybody but himself a fool, but often he does make pretty serious charges.

His treatment of Haig may be justified by the facts: the blistering Haig gets in this volume makes previous Georgian strictures on Pershing read like the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Haig was stupid, stubborn, incompetent and frequently covered his blunders by putting blame for his own mistakes on their shoulders, Lloyd George declares. He also flails Haig for intriguing against Lloyd George, forgetting that a volume or so back that he himself told without apology of his own attempted intrigue against Pershing with the latter's superiors at Washington.

LYRICS OF LIFE

DIFFERENT WAYS

As I went up the road today
A dozen walked the other way.
I had an errand I must do,
And went the right way, that I knew.
But just because my way was right
For me, the only way in sight,
I did not grumble all along
That all the others must be wrong.

And on the road of life I go
I meet so many that I know
Who travel east as I go west
And seem to think their way the best.
Perhaps it is, I cannot tell.
I try to live my life as well
As I can live it, not to claim
All other men must live the same.

For other parties, other creeds,
May be the thing some fellow needs.
I try to pick the road for me,
His road another road may be.
Each has his errand and his task,
And all I ever, ever ask,
Is that he take, as I must do,
The way his conscience tells him to.

NEW YORK — Notes from around the town: Although the 1939 World's fair here is still two years away, rents (always a New Yorker's greatest worry) already are on the up and up . . . some as much as 20 per cent . . . on the strength of it.

And night club owners and bosses of the thousand and one other businesses that contribute to Manhattan's night life already are gathering in corners, whispering over plans to give Broadway a splurge that will make it a succession of New Year eves.

The only ones who seem dejected about it all are the natives who stand in no way to benefit by the hoped-for influx of spenders. In Europe, Florida, Bermuda and the watering places of the Caribbean, the travel agencies tell us, they are looking forward to 1939 as their greatest year . . . the year when New York's millions flee to escape the millions visiting New York.

PARK AVENUE is the synonym for swank but that is only because most of those who write and talk about it never follow it far enough.

Up around the nineties, the gold coast runs out and for blocks, between 109th and 116th, the avenue of millionaires becomes the mostpolyglot market in all Manhattan. It used to be called "Pushcart Paradise" but in the interests of sanitation, stands have replaced the pushcarts. The New York Central tracks come into the light there and the elevated structure offers a roof for this strange mart.

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

Washington—There are all kinds of ways of making congressmen see the broader aspects of President Roosevelt's court repacking program.

It is quite possible, for example, that some of those senators who have been called down privately to Attorney-General Cummings' office since Tuesday have come away with new light on the subject, at least, they have reported to their colleagues they can now see that far more than the question of controlling the supreme court may be involved as far as they personally are concerned.

Mallon

Of course, Mr. Cummings would never lobby among senators for the program of his boss, but he cannot escape the fact that there are about eight federal judicial vacancies and, try as he may, he cannot avoid consulting senators from those districts about recommending appointees. He need not point out that a senator's candidate will have a much better chance of getting the appointment if the senator will support the president's reorganization program. Anyone with intelligence enough to be a senator knows that.

More than one has been deeply impressed.

—SUGGESTION—

Congressmen calling at the White House lately also report that they have been more affected by what they saw than what they heard.

More than one has noticed a large book on the executive desk containing details of the plan for government reorganization. The book is said to contain a list of jobs which will have to be filled or refilled if and when the reorganization goes through.

No argument could be more eloquent with a congressman than this one without words.

—NECESSITIES—

The president really had to take hold of the situation because his whole system of executive lobbying with congress has buckled under the strain of the court proposal.

Knee-weakness has spread like a plague among the usual congressional lobbyists of the White House. Many a congressional leader upon whom the president usually depended has developed a heart too heavy for this particular business. They are going through the motions of cracking the presidential whip, but they made little secret of their listlessness at the outset.

The heavy work fell first upon the two official presidential lobbyists, Charles West and Jimmy Roosevelt, but it was too heavy. Mr. West has been getting along only reasonably well, and Jimmy not at all. As this is young Roosevelt's initial introduction into lobbying, he has been going along to the capitol with West more or less as a sightseer. But even as an accompanist, his presence seems to have failed to bring desired results upon legislators. They are not able to acclimate themselves readily to talking trades with the young son of the president.

This is why congressmen lately have received invitations to the White House singly, and in droves.

—DESUGARING—

The difficult situation which Mr. Roosevelt is up against with congress could be seen behind the action of the house in pushing that Sumners bill, giving retirement privileges to supreme court justices.

House Judiciary Chairman Sumners left the impression with inquiries, after a White House call, that the president was not against pushing that bill ahead of the rest of his program. The statement did not accurately describe the real underlying situation, which was simply this:

Everyone of Mr. R's leaders in the house was glad to skim this sugar from his court pill. Their action made it far more difficult for Mr. Roosevelt to get the only important part of his program through—the remaining part authorizing him to change the complexion of the supreme court.

—DOUBT—

A spokesman competent to speak for the Norris-La Follette crowd says they do not believe Mr. R. can get six good liberal lawyers for the supreme bench out of the whole country. That, they say off-the-record, is the real explanation for the fight they are making.

If you question their deduction, they will name names.

The president would not try to appoint Prof. Frankfurter of Harvard, they say, because "that would be too raw." They mean Frankfurter might not be confirmed by the senate, although their judgment on that is subject to question. Senator Wagner would be satisfactory to them, but he would not be eligible if he votes on the judicial expansion program. Neither would Senator Robinson, who would not be acceptable to them even if he were eligible. They do not want Attorney-General Cummings, SEC Chairman Landis is too young—and that ends their list.

—JUMPING—

Outsiders may have considered it strange that such an excellent reader of handwriting on the wall as Senator Sheppard of Texas neglected to jump out against the court proposal after his Texas legislature opposed it. His colleague, Senator Connally, did.

The answer is Sheppard had committed himself before the legislature acted.

Still, Joe Louis may be a better man for having given so much of his time to a Pastor.

The president seems to think the aged supreme court justices need aid, though they've carefully guarded their Constitution.

JUSTICE FEAD VISITS IN CITY

Attends Luncheon Meet Held by Lawyers of District

Chief Justice Louis H. Fead of the Michigan supreme court was the honor guest at a luncheon meeting of members of the bar of Delta and adjoining counties at the Delta hotel yesterday noon.

The chief justice was enroute from Lansing to Ishpeming, where he will address a banquet tonight. Local attorneys prevailed upon him to stop off here yesterday to address their group.

Attending the luncheon were: Robert Reo, James E. Frost, Denis McGinn, Judd and Harlan Yelland, Herbert and Thomas Rushton, Clyde McGonagle, Charles E. Lewis, E. K. Ryan, Escanaba. Alger W. Strom, Raymond Empson, Gladstone; J. J. Herbert and William Sheahan, Manistique; Ernest Brown and Ray Turner, Iron Mountain; and Alex Sayles, Newberry.

While Justice Fead is a candidate for reelection to the supreme court at the spring election, yesterday's gathering was non-political.

Louis H. Fead was born at Lexington, Sanilac county, Michigan, May 2, 1877. He was educated in the Lexington high school, Olivet college and the University of Michigan, graduating from the law school in 1900. He engaged in the practice of law at Newberry, serving as prosecuting attorney of Luce county from 1901 to 1913, and as circuit judge of the eleventh judicial district from Jan. 1, 1913 to March 1, 1928. He was appointed justice of the supreme court Feb. 21, 1928 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Richard C. Flannigan of Norway.

ASKED FOR AID

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—A statement asking Protestant clergymen of America "to rally, as patriots, to save the constitution ,and the supreme court as its only dependable defender," was issued today by William H. Anderson, general secretary of the American Christian Alliance. Anderson charged President Roosevelt's proposed realignment of the supreme court "actually opens the way to dictatorship."

Henry William Herbert was America's first sports writer. known as Frank Forester, he wrote the "American Turf Register" in 1839, in addition to numerous other articles and books on sports.

Michigan In Washington

Capitol Hill is still buzzing over Roosevelt's proposed judiciary reorganization. Senators and representatives talk of nothing else. Our Michigan congressmen are no exception. The fact that 12 of our 19 men in congress are lawyers makes them add some pungent legal viewpoints to their very active political points of view.

Here may be the second issue upon which the Republicans, following a new policy launched in the three recommendations for changes in the social security act, can present a small but united front of opinion. Certainly, says Vandenberg, never have they all been in such heated agreement. No one has denied that the object of a call made by senators Vandenberg and McNary upon Borah was to formulate a plan of action.

If a unified attack is made, two Michigan men will loom up in the foreground. Back in the secret meetings of the policy-setting committee quite, sure-of-himself Congressman Michener of Adrian, who manages to hit a happy medium between the so-liberal Ham Fishs and the too-conservative Wadsworths, will have a lot to say about what shall be done and said. Especially will be, as a long-time member of the judiciary committee, swing a lot of power on this particular issue.

When the time comes to say it, Senator Vandenberg will again be the voice.

Only one reason will prevent a mass Repulican declaration—that such action might make it a pronounced partisan issue, thus scaring away the support of a number of badly needed independent Democrats if any effort is to be effective.

And wouldn't it be surprising if Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, militant NRA director before its invalidation, was right in his prediction that Gov. Frank Murphy might be one of the new Supreme Court judges.

For some time it has been very generally understood that Michigan's Emil Hurja, assistant to the chairman of the National Democratic committee, James A. Farley, would drop his political activities after the election. It is his—and Mrs. Hurja's—earnest desire. No dearth of lucrative attractive offers is the excuse for his delay. His most ardent chemy would not accuse him of anything but active and staunch loyalty to his party. but he probably never has proved it as much as he is doing today, although few know it. He is refusing to consider any offers which would hinder him from active service to the Democratic party, when and if he is needed in the next election year of 1940.

The Michiganders, several hundred all dressed up and everythin', plan to dine and dance at the annual banquet of the Michigan State society next Thursday, February 18th. The new president, George A. Dondero, Royal Oak congressman, is practicing up a lot of new jokes to tell. Both senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and Prentiss M. Brown, the retiring president, have promised brief talks. Senator Brown, considered quite a state historian, is expected to bring forth some yarns of former days in the state, which this year celebrates its centennial.

Congressman George A. Dondero, who has made the collecting of Lincolnia a hobby, is much in demand as a speaker every Lincoln's birthday. This year is no exception—he speaks on the 12th in Baltimore at the Alexander Hamilton club. Mr. Dondero has known several members of the Lincoln family—the late son, Robert, whose widow, Mary, he often visits here in old Georgetown, and Katherine Holm, sister of Mary Todd—and his talk is sprinkled with intimate family anecdotes.

The 1,558 places of amusement in the state of Michigan (including everything from an amateur show to a circus with the one surprising exception of motion pictures) took in $23,728,000 during 1935. Out of these receipts was paid $5,556,000 in salaries. It is amazing to discover how much work is involved by the bureau of the census in collecting necessary information from all over the state before these three figures can be accurately calculated.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 Miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

OBITUARY

JOHN VARGO, SR.

RAPS REINDL'S VIEWS

Marquette—Labeling the report of Sheriff Edward J. Reindl, of Menominee county, concerning the results of Michigan's parole system grossly misleading and inaccurate, R. E. Benson, state supervisor of paroles, declares in a letter to The Mining Journal that a check of records in Reindl's office does not substantiate the sheriff's claim that the state parole system is resulting in the freeing of large numbers of felons who are returned to prison as punishment for new felonies.

Whereas Sheriff Reindl asid that during the last few years 27 Menominee county felons have been paroled to him and that all have subsequently returned to prison after committing new crimes, ranging from breaking and entering to carrying concealed weapons, Mr. Benson's study shows that from January 1, 1933, to January 1, 1937, twenty-two men were paroled to Sheriff Reindl, of which 10 were discharged from parole with good records.

RETAIL STORES REDUCED LITTLE

Less Than One Per Cent Cut Here During Depression

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Escanaba emerged from the depression with less than one per cent decrease in the number of its retail stores, while the country as a whole showed a gain of 7 per cent, according to the census bureau.

The comparison is between 1929, the year of the crash, and 1935, the last year for which detailed figures are available.

Escanaba went into the depression with 211 retail stores, and in 1935 had 210 suc hstores, census figures show, a net loss of one store. The entire country gained 110,803 stores in the same period, bringing the United States total of retail stores to 1,653,961.

Employment in Escanaba's retail stores showed a decrease from 675 in 1929 to 612 in 1935. At the same time, the number of small and "one man" businesses in Escanaba decreased, as shown by the decrease in the number of proprietors working in their own businesses, from 208 to 182.

Payrolls went down sharply, however, in keeping with the decreased number of workers. For the year in which the market crash heralded the beginning of the depression, Escanaba retail stores had total payrolls of $892,000. In 1935, the total payrolls of Escanaba's retail stores was $530,000.

Sales showed a similar trend, dropping from $8,665,000 to $5,788,000.

How different lines of retail business in Escanaba were affected during the same period is shown by the following tabulations:

All food stores decreased from 68 to 66, and sales of such stores dropped from $1,927,000 to $1,294,000.

Family clothing stores in 1929 numbered 2 in Escanaba, while there were 20 stores in the apparel group in 1935 with total sales of $331,000.

Lumber and building stores numbered 2 in Escanaba in 1929, as compared with 10 in 1935, while sales for the latter year totaled $262,000.

Stores in the automotive group numbered 26 with sales of $2,217,000 in 1929, while in 1935 the total number of stores was 13 and total sales were $1,193,000. Filling stations increased from 10 to 14, while sales decreased from $317,000 to $235,000.

Drug stores—8 of them—had total sales of $208,000 in 1929 while in 1935 8 stores did a total business of $137,000.

Auto Strike Affected 14 States At Cost Of Many Million Dollars

Detroit, Feb. 11 (AP)—The automobile industry's "contest of the century" was a struggle of more than 40 days marked by more apprehension than violence, more threats than action, and a marathon of conferences.

In the lists as opposing gladiators were the automotive giant, the billion dollar General Motors corporation, and the United Automobile Workers of America, lusty infant of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Unique in that it was the first great strike in the industry as well as the first widespread and correlated use of the "sit-down" maneuver in this country, the dispute involved through a single corporation nearly half of the nation's automobile production.

The cost was far up in the millions. Approximately 135,000 employes of General Motors and subsidiaries missed pay checks. The daily loss in wages was estimated at $1,000,000.

Fourteen States Hit

Effects of the strike paralyzed at times 40 plants in 35 cities and 14 states from New Jersey to California. Flint, Mich., with 38,600 of its 165,000 residents thrown into idleness, became the strike capital. The daily loss in wages there was estimated at $300,000, and the city's economic life was seriously impaired.

The issues were obscurred at times by flurries of statements from both sides.

Briefly, they were: the demand of the United Automobile Workers of America for recognition as the sole bargaining agency for General Motors employes; abolition of piece work in favor of straight hourly rates; a 30-hour week and six-hour day, with time and a half for overtime and a "minimum rate of pay commensurate with an American standard of living"; seniority rights based on length of service; reinstatement of all employes who had been "unjustly discharged"; mutual agreement on "speed of production."

One issue appeared transcendant—the union's demand for recognition as the sole bargaining agency.

There stood as an obstacle in the path to negotiations General Motors' rigid demand that plants be evacuated before it would arbitrate, while the union was steadfast in its insistence on recognition.

Charge Broken Faith

Those were the rocks that wrecked the "Lansing truce," an agreement to negotiate reached after a 17-hour conference with Governor Frank Murphy at his state capital office.

Union officials charged the corporation with "breach of faith" because between the truce and the start of negotiations it agreed to confer with the Flint Alliance, strike-opposed organization. The union halted evacuation, and General Motors then declined to negotiate.

From Lansing the belligerents moved to the nation's capital, called by Secretary of Labor Perkins, but three days of bi-lateral talks failed to bring the principals together.

From Washington the conferees moved to Detroit, again summoned by Governor Murphy but this time 'at the wish of the president of the United States."

President Roosevelt remained in th background, but he was in close touch with the situation. Governor Murphy said, on one occasion, "the president's influence has been very helpful."

Violence was near a minimum. Only two serious outbursts occurred, both at Flint. In the first one 27 persons were hurt. A dozen persons were injured in the second flareup.

City an Armed Camp

The city was virtually an armed camp, with nearly 4,000 national guardsmen concentrated there, although only 1,200 were on patrol duty. In addition there was an undetermined number of specially deputized "police reserves."

The story of the strike goes back to August, 1935, when the United Automobile Workers Union was organized at an American Federation of Labor convention in Detroit. More than a year before, President Roosevelt had averted serious trouble in the industry by direct intervention and out of that came the short-lived national automobile labor board.

Ten years earlier, the American Federation of Labor began a campaign to organize the industry, but abandoned the effort the next year.

Organization of the U. A. W. A., as autonomous group in April, 1936, set the stage for the costly struggle. The 1936 convention at South Bend, Ind., ousted Francis Dillon from the presidency and elected Homer Martin, a former (Baptist) preacher from Kansas City.

About two months later—July 1—a merger was effected which brought several locals of the Automobile Industrial Workers Association, the Mechanics Educational Society of America and the Associated Automobile Workers of America into the U. A. W. A.

Lewis Gives Support

Martin at the same time announced a membership drive which he said had the support of the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis, who had split with the American Federation of Labor.

The United Automobile Workers' first "sit-down" strike came a few months later at Atlanta, Ga.—far from the "motor capital of America." It began November 18 in a Fisher Body blant over a company rule forbidding the wearing of union insignia. A Chevrolet assembly line there also was closed.

The industry was quiet for nearly a month, but a second strike—at Kansas City over discharge of an employe—closed another Fisher Body plant and a Chevrolet assembly line.

Martin made his first overture for a conference on collective bargaining December 21. The next day William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, advised him the matters should be taken up with plant superintendents. Martin repeated his request.

Strikes Spread Rapidly

From then on the strikes spread and idleness grew in the far-flung plants controlled by the world's largest producer of motor cars. Each side issued statements, but there was no common gathering of opponents until January 14.

At the invitation of Governor Murphy to meet "without condition or prejudice,' Martin and Knudsen and their associates assembled at Lansing for a prolonged session. Just before dawn January 15 the governor announced the "Lansing agreement."

The agreement provided a 15-day period for negotiations beginning January 18, the plants to be evacuated before the meeting hour. General Motors agreed not to remove equipment or attempt to operate. All but two plants had been evacuated when the union ordered its men to hold to their positions and charged the corporation with "breach of faith."

The charge was based on an exchange of telegrams between Knudsen and George E. Boysen, head of the Flint Alliance, and asked for a conference. Knudsen agreed to arrange one.

Situation Gets Tense

The Flint situation suddenly became more tense, and the negotiations were not carried out.

Murphy went to Washington and there began a series of conferences called by Secretary of Labor Perkins. She and the governor conferred with opposing leaders during the next three days, but the belligerents were not brought together.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., who went to Washington from New York at Secretary Perkins' request, left the capital after Lewis issued a statement calling on the strikers to "sit tight for an honorable settlement." Back in New York, Sloan issued a lengthy statement defining General Motors' position. He said evacuation of the plants was the "only issue."

Secretary Perkins tried again to bring the leaders together, but Sloan declined. The secretary charged the corporation had "failed in its public duty" and President Roosevelt called it "a very unfortunate decision."

General Motors announced about that time it planned to call 95,000 idle employes for partial employment.

With the end of the first month of the "sit-down" situation at Flint on January 30, Governor Murphy renewed his efforts to bring corporation and union leaders together. A conference was arranged for February 3.

Production Declines

By the end of January, General Motors' scheduled production of 30,000 units a day had fallen to 1,500 in one week—a daily average of but 300—and of the week's total only 200 were passenger cars. In 1936 the corporation produced nearly 2,000,000 units, of which 1,275,000 were Chevrolet cars. The scheduled production was about 145,000 units. Only 84,636 were produced.

The governor's new meeting opened amid nerve-tingling tension. Two days earlier a dozen persons had been injured in the second outburst of volince at Flint and 1,200 national guardsmen, billeted within the city since Janhary 12 bht kept away from the strike zone, patrolled, for the firht time, an 80-acre area in which one of the "sit-down" plants was located with a dozen other General Motors units.

Also on the day prior to the opening of the conference Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola at Flint issued a sweeping injunction, ordering the two plants evacuated under $15,000 penalty. The deadline—3 p. m., February 3, five hours after the scheduled start of the Detroit conference—came and went with the strikers holding the plant in defiance of the court order. Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott was authorized to act on forcible ejection of the men but withheld all moves pending an outcome of the conference.

Negotiations Continue

The negotiators stuck doggedly to their task through the ensuing days with attention divided between Detroit and Flint, where a delicate situation prevailed. Governor Murphy talked to President Roosevelt by telephone several times, and the president revealed that he talked with both Lewis and Knudsen.

At Flint the national guard increased its vigilance as the parley dragged on. The city commission declared a state of emergency and conferred virtual dictatorial powers on Mayor Harold E. Bradshaw.

The conference appeared headed for failure the night of February 8 when a General Motors statement reiterated its unyielding position and indicated it saw no usefulness in continuing util the governor had a new proposal.

The picture brightened the following day and appeared to improve slowly but steadily after that.

Radio "Crackling" Causes Complaints

Steps are being taken by the city to locate and try to eliminate some of the radio noises which have been causing complaints from Escanaba residents recently.

The city utility service department has equipment for locating radio interference, and there is also a city ordinance prohibiting the use of apparatus which disrupts radio reception. The ordinance specifies that persons may be notified to correct the apparatus causing radio trouble, and may be subjected to a fine if the conditions are not remedied.

an unanimous vote.

When the keynote address and other speeches disposed of Wednesday, the convention had nothing to do but fill its ticket for the spring election and adopt a platform.

The latter was an exceedingly mild document. It praised Governor Murphy for the manner in which he handled the General Motors strike situation, but was silent on President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the supreme court. The governor did not attend the convention. When an announcement was made that a formal agreement ending the General Motors strike had been signed, the delegates rose and cheered.

Edward J. Fry of Fremont was reelected chairman of the state central committee, and Mrs. Christine McDonald of Ypsilanti was retained as vice chairman. Andrew Bellanger of Detroit was made secretary of the committee, succeeding Don W. Canfield.

'Pastor' Put Behind Bars At Escanaba

Telling the same story twice, both times to Escanaba men, brought trouble Thursday for Wesley B. Bolen, 30, of Iron Mountain, a highway hitch-hiker, and today he is in the Delta county jail awaiting sentence on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Back on December 12, 1936, Harry P. Bourke of Escanaba was driving home from Duluth late in the afternoon of a bitter cold day. He noticed a man with a hand-bag walking along the road, and picked him up. On the way to Escanaba, the traveler explained that he was a minister of the Gospel, had been held up at Duluth, and without funds was trying to get back to his church duties and sick wife in lower Michigan. He gave his name as the Rev. E. T. Harvey.

Mr. Bourke was impressed with the story told by the minister, and provided lodging for him at an Escanaba hotel, also giving him $15 to aid him in reaching Cheboygan, which he gave as his destination. Checking up later with the sheriff's department in the lower Michigan county, Mr. Bourke learned that the Rev. E. T. Harvey was not known in that vicinity and probably did not exist. Mr. Bourke told the story to a few of his friends, and concluded that he had fallen for a faked hard luck tale.

On Thursday, William Kennedy of Escanaba was driving along the highway toward this city and picked up a dejected looking pedestrian carrying a grip. On the way in, Mr. Kennedy learned from the traveler that he was a minister of the Gospel, and had been held up at Duluth, and was on his way to lower Michigan, trying to make the trip without funds.

Mr. Kennedy had heard the story of Mr. Bourke's experience, and he immediately decided he had met the same "minister." After dropping the hitch-hiker at the western outskirts of the city, Mr. Kennedy notified Mr. Bourke, and the latter went out with a police officer and picked up the preacher on the highway.

At the police station, the stranger gave his name as Wesley B. Bolen and admitted getting money from the local man. In his possession was a cash book listing a score or more sympathetic persons who he said had given him money after he told his story, and after each name was the amount. He said that he had been working the unfortunate preacher scheme for over a year in five states, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and Indiana, and his "cash book" showed close to $300 in donations for the last few weeks. He said he was born at Cedar River, Mich.

Bolen was arraigned before Justice H. E. Ranguette Thursday afternoon on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, and pleaded guilty to the charge. Sentence was postponed while local officers check up on Bolen's record. He told authorities he had served three years in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun.

Crew Of 26 Saved By Breeches Buoy

Port Orford, Ore., Feb. 10 (AP)—The entire crew of 26 came ashore via breeches buoy from the storm wrecked steamer Cottoneva tonight in raging winds and high waves.

The ship, cut loose from the Port Arford dock a few hours before in a futile attempt to ride out the storm, struck the hands and coast guardsmen said it appeared to be a total loss.

Winds trapped the coastwise vessel in rocks near shore and later sent it headlong to the beach.

The 200-foot craft, enroute from Los Angeles to Grays Harbor, Wash., loaded 150,000 feet of lumber today.

There are 40 miles of bicycle paths in Chicago.

LIQUOR PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Murray States Program of U. P. Vendors Association

Legislation providing uniform closing of retail liquor establishments at 1 a. m. throughout the state, and not longer business hours, is sought by the Upper Peninsula Retail Liquor Vendors association, it was announced by Leonard Murray, Escanaba, president of the association yesterday.

Mr. Murray recently returned from Lansing, where he conferred with members of the legislature regarding proposed changes to the Michigan liquor law.

He said that the liquor dealers of the Upper Peninsula are satisfied with the present 1 a. m. closing regulation, but would like to have it apply uniformly throughout the state. The raising of the age limit for patrons from 18 to 21 years is also desired.

Mr. Murray confirmed the Press statement that revision of the law to permit drinking at the bar is also one of the objectives. He saidt hat many laborers, who come in with their working clothes, on their way to and from work prefer to get quick service at the bar instead of sitting in a booth.

Other items on the association program, Mr. Murray said, are as follows: Right to sell liquor for consumption off the premises; restoration of state inspection service; jury trials for violators instead of commission hearings; automatic renewal of licenses at expiration date; cancellation of licenses for serious violations of law, right to sell all beverages until 1 a. m. Sunday, but closing of all establishments on Sunday morning until 12 o'clock noon.

Mr. Murray said that consideration of liquor legislation in the legislature has been delayed because of the automobile strike.

GHEEN RECORD ENVIABLE ONE

Tourist Meeting Speaker Has Background of Wide Experience

James E. Gheen of New York City who will be the featured speaker of the "Lure of Escanaba" tourist exposition at the Wm. W. Oliver Memorial auditorium on Friday evening, February 19, will speak on the subject, "New Opportunities for Escanaba."

Gheen is a public relations counsellor with a nation-wide experience and reputation as a speaker. As a philosophical humorist he has no peer on the public platform. Mr. Gheen has been aptly described as a business man with a keen sense of humor.

His background of business training, which included newspaper work, as a reporter, and a constructive columnist, and as a feature writer; and fifteen years in the steel business in Coatesville, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y., and Bethlehem, Pa., and many years in the civic-commercial organization field, has fitted him to present an unique viewpoint on many subjects which are particularly appealing and interesting to business men and women.

As secretary of the Chambers of Commerce of Bethlehem, Pa., Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Albany, N. Y., and as field secretary of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, he made a splendid record. His experience as an organizer of, and counsellor to, civic-commercial organizations and trade associations and also the technique and phychology required to produce lasting results.

His record of having spoken in thirty-six states and in Canada, to audiences of all sorts and sizes, in three hundred and seventy-eight different cities and towns, is an enviable one.

The Scranton, Pa., Times said, concerning his first visit to that city, before the Chamber of Commerce: "Mr. Gheen's address was accepted as one of the finest ever heard by a Scranton audience."

Seldom does more than one tuck develop on the norwhal whale. This tusk, usually the left one, reaches the enormous length of 10 feet. It projects straight from the upper jaw, and is used in fighting.

Mirages in South Africa occasionally are so distinct as to make animals hurry to drink from visionary pools.

Moth Braves Zero Weather

While the thermometer hovered around zero, one of the brave forecasters of warmer days, was brought to the Press office yesterday—a promethus moth. The moth, who tried his wings in the afternoon sunlight, is beautifully marked, with deep orange and black on grey.

In 1896, the War Department of the United States was called upon to fight flowers. Water hyacinths, imported from Brazil, were choking up the rivers and streams of Florida.

DEAFENED Boy Hears Radio

"My boy hears everything on the radic" writes Mrs. Gamphier, Cincinnati. "Before he used Ourine he could not hear the radio." If you are deafened, bothered by ringing, buzzing head noises, this may be caused or aggravated by imbedded wax or a septic condition. Try the treatment that thousands say has enabled them to hear well again. It is called Ourine, a Vienna specialist's antiseptic prescription. Used since 1895—over a million packages sold. Safe ingredients as listed in U. S. Pharmacopeia. Money refunded if you are not satisfied. Costs only a few cents daily. Ask about OURINE today.

STRAIGHT 100 PROOF

TWO THINGS TO LOOK FOR ON A WHISKEY LABEL

1. The type of whiskey . . . blend or straight
2. The "proof" . . .

These statements on the label are dependable guides to the kind of whiskey you want.

Do you like your taste "straight"? Then pick a straight whiskey. It's "all whiskey and all one kind of whiskey." While you're about it, why not get your full money's worth of straight whiskey? Look for the "proof" . . . the measure of strength and, hence, a measure of value.

Just remember to ask for "Old Mr. Boston." It's full 100 proof. Worth remembering because its higher proof delivers more whiskey taste. Extra economical because it takes less to make a full-flavored highball . . . enough less to give you at least two extra highballs to every bottle. Buy a bottle of Old Mr. Boston 100 Proof Straight Whiskey tonight, and enjoy the extra pleasure of recalling how little you paid for so much solid whiskey value.

Over a Million Miles On Pharis Tires!

William Grigsby, pictured above, has driven over a million miles on Pharis Tires and states that he's got a good start towards his second million. Like Mr. Grigsby, thousands of other Pharis users have found that they get many added miles of safe, economical driving with their Pharis tires, and our price offers considerable savings.

Another Pharis tire user writes us "I would just like to express my satisfaction with the Pharis tire I purchased from Gamble's 3 years ago. This tire has never been off the rim and has never been flat. During this period it was driven 35,000 miles."

McKenney On Bridge

BY WM. E. McKENNEY

Not all squeeze situations develop early. Often declarer has the choice between a finesse and an attempted squeeze. In such case it is good policy to defer the decision as long as possible, and gain information from forced discards defending players.

In today's hand, South, declarer, got a very favorable opening lead, but even then he made his contract solely because of most careful manipulation of his cards. The three of hearts was won by South, and a low spade was led to dummy. East, with four trumps, refused to win the trick.

Opening lead—♥ 3. 8

The king of hearts was led, and South discarded a diamond. The ace of diamonds dropped East's king.

A second round of diamonds disclosed that East had no more. South ruffed and returned a trump. East won and played a heart. South discarded a club. South now ruffed a diamond and led his remaining trumps.

Today's Contract Problem

South is playing the contract at three no trump. Should East win the opening trick?

Solution in next issue. 8

The last trump squeezed West, who had the queen of diamonds and queen-nine-five of clubs. Dummy's holding was the ten of diamonds and the ace-eight-two of clubs. East held the jack of hearts and the three clubs to the ten.

West, of course, discarded the small club and dummy the ten of diamonds. East dropped his heart, and now South decided to refuse the club finesse, thus making all the remaining tricks.

You will not that even to the end South retained the option of the finesse in the club suit, should this appear the more likely play at the time when the decision must be made.

If East had returned a club, rather than a heart, South's contract would have been defeated.

Franklin P-T-A Enjoys Founders Day Observance

Founders' Day was most fittingly observed by the Franklin unit of the Parent-Teacher association at the regular meeting held Wednesday in the school auditorium.

Mrs. William Henderson, president, presided over a brief business meeting at which time the unit voted to send a contribution to the Red Cross for flood relief.

Mrs. John Manning, program chairman, introduced Mrs. G. W. Moll, a past president, who read the impressive candle-light service before a ceremonial table formally appointed with a birthday cake as a centerpiece, surrounded by seven lighted tapers, symbols of the seven elements in character building which the organization endeovors to inculcate in the child. Mrs. Moll was assisted by Ellen Marie Flath and Regina Manning.

A trombone which was recently purchased by the unit was presented to the school by Mrs. Kibby Treiber. Forest Kallin demonstrated the tone quality of the new instrument by playing "Massa's in the Cold Ground," and "Our Boys Will Shine Tonight.' Marian Hibbard was accompanist.

Mrs. Christian Riegel, Council president, gave an interesting and enlightening talk on "The History of the Local P. T. A." Mrs. Riegel described the meagre beginning of the P. T. A. Council which was organized October 10, 1922, outlined briefly the problem which faced the respective presidents and their co-workers and enumerated the many achievements of these foresighted women, who worked zealously to improve the health and morals of the children of this community.

Pioneer Organization

She developed her subject by showing how the P. T. A. Council was a pioneer in introducing and working on many worthy projects, including school playgrounds, health clinics, milk for undernourished children, summer health round-ups for children of pre-school age, and the present project of supervised recreation which is being carried on at the Webster Recreational Center.

In closing she stated that the local P. T. A. had rapidly expanded during its brief existence, seven units having been organized, all of which are functioning efficiently.

The program closed by assembly singing of "America, the Beautiful."

Births

Word has been received from Lake Mills, Wis., of the birth of a son on February 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Rader Simonsen of that city. Both Mr. and Mrs. Simonsen are former residents of Escanaba.

Announcement has been received here of the birth of a daughter, the first child in the family, Sunday afternoon at Milwaukee General hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LaSalle of that city. Mrs. LaSalle is the former Agnes LaCrosse of Escanaba. The condition of the mother, and of the baby, Mary Hope Frances, who weighed three and a half pounds at birth, is reported as well as may be expected. Mrs. Frances LaCrosse, Mrs. LaSalle's mother, who was called to Milwaukee by the seriousness of her condition, is remaining there with her.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

"Dangerous Number" and "Black Legion" are features on the Delft theatre program today and Saturday.

Marital quarrels at the rate of one a minute, a marriage the legality of which is complicated by daylight saving time, chases with gangsters, and mysterious meetings with a beautiful charmer, with romance rampant in spite of all, are highlights in the screen's latest mirthquake, "Dangerous Number."

The heroine and hero quarrel, make up, quarrel again, get in trouble with the police. There are hectic moments with crowds of vaudeville performers, true love is bumped in taxis, jolted by gangsters, and the heroine falls into the water which dissolves her "silk" dress.

The films write a page of current history in "Black Legion," a thrilling melodrama produced by Warner Bros.

Recently, in Michigan, a band of masked and hooded men took the law in their own hands and killed their chosen enemies without semblance of justice or mercy.

AT THE MICHIGAN

Did Alice Vaile do wrong? Was it wrong for her to enter the life of the man she always loved when she knew that he was misunderstood by his wife and children? Was she unjust to herself when she opened their eyes to his virtues? Or should she have won him for herself?

With Binnie Barnes, glamorous English beauty as Alice Vaile this new twist to the Eternal Triangle theme takes on added intensity, in "There's Always Tomorrow," the Universal picture which comes to the Michigan theatre today. Frank Morgan and Lois Wilson are the husband and wife into whose life she enters with such astonishing results.

Jack Loeffler has returned from Milwaukee where he has been visiting with his aunts, Miss Harriet Loeffler and Mrs. Andrew Schaech.

Lamb Kidneys with Mustard Sauce

(4 to 6 servings)

Eight pairs of lamb kidneys (at least 1 pair kidneys a person), 3 tablespoons butter, 3-4 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon flour, ¼ teaspoon lemon juice, 1-3 cup boiling water.

Clean kidneys by removing skin and all membranes and fat tissue. Cut each in half lengthwise. Wash carefully in cold water, drain and dry. Heat butter in iron pan. Cook kidneys in butter, dusting them lightly with salt. Use slow fire and turn kidneys frequently. After 10 minutes of cooking, add this mixture: mustard, flour, lemon juice, and water. Make into smooth paste and when added to pan, stir constantly for 1 minute, then serve kidneys and sauce at once.

Nut and Raisin Gems

(18 small ones)

One cup white flour, 1 cup wholewheat flour, 3 tablespoons baking powder, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup seeded raisins, 1-2 cup broken nut meats, 1 egg (well beaten), 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Before going to bed the night before, mix together the white and wholewheat flour, sugar, salt, nut meats and raisins. Place in covered dish and this part of the recipe will be ready and waiting in the morning, cutting out some of the need for haste. In the morning, add sifted baking powder, mix in well, and add milk which has been mixed with eggs and melted butter. Stir until all dry ingredients have been moistened, but not made sloppy. Pour in hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 20 minutes.

Ham Waffles

(6 four-section waffles)

Two cups flour, 3 cups buttermilk, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup finely ground cooked ham.

Sift salt, sugar and flour together. Slowly add milk mixed with soda. Then add well-beaten egg yolks. Beat the whites until stiff. Fold in at last. Pour into hot waffle iron. Sprinkle with ham just before closing iron. Try these waffles with scrambled eggs on top.

Bacon is to the American breakfast what turkey is to Thanksgiving. To broil it, place strips on broiler rack and run rack in 4 or 5 inches under heat. Do not have too hot a fire. Turn strips frequently until done. To broil in pan, place slices in iron pan over low fire. Turn frequently and keep draining off grease as it appears. To oven-cook bacon, lay strips on broiler rack in a shallow baking pan. Stand in moderately hot oven and turn bacon frequently to keep it flat and uncurled.

Relish Salad

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin mixture
1 2-3 cups boiling water
1-4 cup vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1-4 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
1-3 cup chopped sweet pickles
1 cup chopped cabbage
1-4 teaspoon salt

Dissolve the gelatin mixture in water. Add vinegar and sugar. Cool and add rest of ingredients. Pour into mold. Chill until firm, serve on lettuce or cabbage leaves and top with dressing or mayonnaise.

Beef Liver with Vegetables

(4 to 6 servings)

One and one-half pounds beef liver, 1-8 pound salt pork, 1 onion, 4 carrots, 2 stalks celery, 1 cup sour cream, salt, paprika, pepper, flour.

Slice beef liver into 6 pieces for servings. Wash and remove all membranes. Stand in salted cold water for 20 minutes. Drain and dry. Dust lightly with flour, season delicately and then brown lightly in bacon drippings. Arrange pieces in baking dish. Slice pork into thin strips, chop onion, carrot and celery coarsely. Sprinkle chopped vegetables over liver, dust with flour. Cover with boiling vegetable stock. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F) for 1½ hours. Remove, add 1 cup sour cream, stir it in carefully, and return to oven for another 12 minutes. Inexpensive and flavorful, this is a health-guarantee dish.

BETTINA SALAD

1 cup seeded grapes
2-3 cup sliced bananas
½ cup diced apples
½ cup diced celery
1-8 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup salad dressing

Chill ingredients. Combine and serve on crisp lettuce or cabbage leaves.

REGULARITY HELPS YOU AVOID COLDS

As a protection against colds, a healthy body is even better than umbrellas or overshoes.

But so many people let common constipation get them in a "run-down" condition — where they are likely to catch the first cold that comes along.

Keep feeling well this winter. Avoid constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. It furnishes corrective "bulk," as well as vitamin B to tone up the intestines. Also iron for the blood.

In the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, and gently sponges out the system. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In chronic cases, with each meal.

How much better to eat this food instead of taking weakening pills and drugs! Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SOUR CREAM PRUNE CAKE

(Nut covered)

1-3 cup fat
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped dried prunes (uncooked)
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup shredded nuts

Cream fat and sugar. Add egg, cream, extracts, spices, salt, prunes, flour, soda and baking powder. Bake on minute. Pour into shallow pan lined with waxed paper and sprinkle top of batter with nuts. Bake 30 minutes in moderately slow oven.

This is a moist cake and will remain fresh for a week if stored in cake box.

Chicken Country Style

(4 servings)

Two broilers cut in 4 pieces each, 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, 1 cup cream, milk, salt, pepper, paprika, flour.

Singe and clean fresh chickens. Cut in 4 pieces each. Marinate in cold milk slightly salted for 15 minutes. A clove of garlic added to the cold milk improves the flavor. Remove chicken, dry and season with salt and pepper. Dust very lightly with flour. Heat unsalted butter in large frying pan. Place in the chicken. Put in slow oven (325 degrees F.) and bake.

As the chicken turns a golden brown, turn pieces over. Keep turning until chicken is golden brown on all sides. Remove to hot platter. Into butter and drippings of the pan, turn 1 cup cream and season with a little paprika. Simmer for 10 minutes, until the gravy begins to thicken. No, absolutely nothing else for the gravy. One drop of flour will spoil everything. Pour this over the chicken, then eat.

Chicken in Cocoanut Shell

(2 servings)

One large cocoanut, 1 cup canned kernels of corn (not creamed), 1 large onion, sliced, 3 tablespoons olive oil, ½ strip bacon, sliced, 1 green pepper, chopped, 3 fresh tomatoes, chopped, ½ clove garlic, chopped, 1 spring chicken cut in 4 pieces.

Remove slice from top of cocoanut. Scrape out most of the meat. Mix together the corn, and 3-4 cup of cocoanut meat. Heat olive oil in large pan, add sliced onions, bacon and green pepper. When cooked for 3 minutes, turn in tomatoes and cook down until mixture is moist but thickened. Strain and add to cocoanut mixture. Add the cleaned and cut up chicken. Place all this into the cocoanut shell. Replace cut-off slice and seal with a paste of flour and water. Stand cocoanut in shallow pan of water. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 1 hour. Baste frequently while baking. When you open the shell, the fragrance will astound you. When you taste the chicken with its amazing sauce, you'll begin to sing with delight.

Texas Round-Up

(For 4 to 6 servings)

One and one-half pounds round steak, ground, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-8 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 2-3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons chopped pimentos.

Combine meat, green pepper, salt, black pepper, onion, Worcestershire, mustard and mix well. Shape into balls. Dust each with flour and fry in hot fat until browned. Then make the biscuit coats to go over these hot little fellows. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Work in shortening with a fork or 2 knives. Then add milk, a little at a time, and finally the chopped pimentos. Turn out on floured board and roll to ¼ inch thickness. Cut in squares. You can make from 8 to 10 meat balls, so cut the biscuit squares into same number. Wrap each meat ball in a square of dough, moistening the edges together. Place on well-greased pan and bake in hot oven fo rabout 15 minutes. One more thing—that's a red, red tomato sauce to serve with them.

Waffles With Ham and Eggs

(6 servings)

One small can deviled ham, 9 eggs, waffle batter.

Make this at table, using your electric waffle iron and electric chafing dish. Soften the deviled ham with a little cream to spreading consistency. Scramble the eggs to a soft and creamy consistency. Cook very slowly. When each section of waffles is done, remove iro miron, spread at once with the deviled ham mixture, then pile some scrambled egg on top and pass for immediate consumption.

Apple Pan Dowdy

(For 10 portions.)

Two quarts sliced apples, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-4 cup water, 3 tablespoons butter, pie crusts.

Line casserole with pie crust. Mix sugar, spice and salt together and pour over apples. When well distributed, fill casserole. Add molasses, butter and water. Cover with pie crust and tuck edges together. Press to sides of casserole. Place in oven which is quite hot (about 425 F.) and bake at that temperature for three-quarters of an hour, then reduce heat to moderately slow (325 degrees F. When crust has browned slightly and apples are tender, remove from oven. Take a silver knife and chop up the mixture, being sure that the pie crust is thoroughly mixed with the apples. If dry or not sufficiently sweetened, add more water and molasses. Return to oven and bake 1 1-2 hours in moderately slow oven (325 F.). When finished, the Pan Dowdy will look a lot like old-fashioned Brown Betty.

Your headaches are caused by eye strain, nerves or bad liver, all depending on whether you go to an eye, nerve or liver specialist.

CHAPTER XIV

K.: You say this dame is sweet on you?

P.: Yes, she made just one darn nuisance of herself ever since the day after we put out from New York. "Oh, Count, it's such a lovely day, would you carry my rug up to the sun deck?"—"Oh, Count, don't run away, there 're so many things I want to talk to you about."—"Oh, Count, must you go below, then let's meet in the lounge before the others come up for a cocktail." Well, it's all right when you want that sort of thing, but when you don't some janes give you the willies.

K.: I get you. Now let's go back to the night in question.

P.: Well, it was this way: when we were talking in the lounge, before Rocksavage and that fellow Stodart came in, I happened to have mentioned that I had read a real good book, "The Saint in New York," it was called, by a guy named Charteris. When we came down the companion-way she said to me, "Oh, Count, I wonder if you'd lend me that lovely book you've just finished?" and she takes my arm and accompanies me along to my cabin. I handed her the book immediately we got inside but she wasn't going. Oh, no, sir, believe you me. Down she sat on the edge of my bed and engaged me in conversation. She sat there nearly half an hour, and even then I had my work cut out to get rid of her. Then I had to scram after she left, or I wouldn't have been changed in time for dinner. That's all there is to it.

K.: Right, that's fine. Now, I want to know why Reginald Jocelyn asked you to join this party in the first place?

P.: He fancies himself at poker, so he asked me along in the hope we'd be able to make a little school and brighten up the trip.

K.: Did he know that you were a sharp?

P.: Well, no, I wouldn't say that, but he's no fool, that boy, although I certainly took a wad off him when we crossed together on the Normandie. He can see as far as most people and, although he's no reason to complain, I wouldn't be surprised if he thinks my castle in Italy to be all moonshine.

* * *

K.: Listen, Slick: he wouldn't have asked you to come along if he felt that way about you, and it's pretty obvious from what you say that he did. There must have been some other reason and I want it.

P.: Well, if there was, I'm not talking about it.

K.: Don't you think it would be better to do the talking quietly here with me, than to some heartless cop you'll have to spill the beans to if I send you ashore?

P.: You wouldn't do that, chief.

K.: I would, and you know it. You're due for a first class grilling, Slick, unless you come clean with me.

P.: If only you'll believe me that's all I ask.

K.: I'll believe you all right. Now let's have it.

P.: Well, Jocelyn and I got friendly on the Normandie, and one night I asked him if he ever did a job of work, or just drifted around being the grand play boy all the time. He told me he was in Lady Welter's outfit, and from then on we got talking stocks and shares. He let it out that most of his ma-in-law's money was tied up in the Rocksavage companies and they hadn't been doing too well lately, because Bolitho Blane and his crowd had been hitting into them right and left.

At the mention of Bolitho Blane I just saw red. I've never seen the man. Honest, chief, I never have, but he did me dirt once that I'll never forget. He came on board the old Mauretania to see somebody off at Liverpool, and he noticed me among the passengers. He recognized me from a snapshot that had been taken on a previous trip when I got intimate with a friend of his and—well—you know my line of business, Chief, I had skinned that friend of his good and grand. He tipped off the purser. The purser told me, afterwards, that he had. They watched me specially during that trip and caught me out. That was the first time and the judge sent me down for eighteen months in Sing Sing.

Now, I ask you, wasn't that just a develish trick to play? It wasn't as though I had taken a wad off Blane himself, but he must go and point me out to the purser as a suspect, and that put me behind the bars. I've always sworn that I'd get even with him one day.

K.: So that's how the land lies, is it?

P.: No, no, Chief, you've got me all wrong. Didn't I say that once a guy starts talking he lets himself in. I didn't murder Blane. I give you my word I didn't.

K.: I'm not suggesting that you did, but now you've got so far you'd better give me the rest of the story.

P.: All right, then. When I went off the deep end about Blane this chap Jocelyn became mighty interested and he said to me "Now, if you'd really like a chance to settle your account with Blane I can give it to you. A little party is being arranged in about a fortnight's time in Mr. Rocksavage's yacht, for deep-sea fishing, sunbathing and that sort of thing. Blane is going to be one of the guests. Would you care to come along?"

Well, I thought that over. I didn't give Blane his, I swear I didn't. That was the last thing in my mind. But it seemed a grand opportunity to get in with the swell crowd, like this.

K.: How's the luck been running?

P.: I haven't touched a card since I came on board. There's been a little mild bridge evenings, that's all. What d'you take me for anyway? Think I'd go and spill the beans by soaking this crowd for a few grand first evening we were out of port. No, sir! That's not the kind of man I am.

There might have been just one little card party one night before we got back to port, where maybe I'd have been the lucky one, but not so lucky that any of these people would ever have supposed there was anything phoney about me. I valued this connection higher than that. If I played my hand right on this trip it was a sure bet they'd be asking me to parties when we got back to New York. That's what I was after, and I wasn't going to spoil it by any funny stuff on the trip.

K.: Has Jocelyn said anything to you since you came on board about the chance he had given you to settle accounts with Blane?

P.: Not a thing. I just took him at his word and came along and, if you want the truth, by the time we were one day out I'd just forgotten every word about that conversation in the Normandie. I was so interested in making these new hook ups with the society crowd that I'd even forgotten Blane was coming on board until his secretary introduced himself to Rocksavage two evenings ago just after we sailed from Miami.

K.: You do believe though that Jocelyn asked you on board principally because he knew that you had a grudge against Blane?

P.: That's God's truth, Chief—God's truth, and if you ask me something fresh must have happened to make Jocelyn so mad with Blane that he sailed in and did the job himself before waiting to see if I'd act as his satspaw.

K.: All right, Slick, that'll do now. I'll be seeing you.

On the Record

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

none of these things. There have been benevolent dictatorships and benevolent tyrannies. They have even, at times in history, worked for the popular welfare. But that is not the welfare, which up to now, the American people have chosen.

And let us not be confused by the words "liberal" and "conservative," or misled into thinking that the expressed will of the majority is the essence of democracy. By that definition Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini are all great democratic leaders. The essence of Democracy is the protection of minorities. Nor has a majority of this generation the right to mortgage a majority of the next. In the Constitution of the United States is incorporated the rights of the people, rights enjoyed by every American citizen in perpetuity, which cannot be voted away by any majority, ever. Majorities are temporary things. The Supreme Court is there to protect the fundamental law even against the momentary "Will of the people." That is its function. And it is precisely because nine men can walk out and say: "You can't do that!" that our liberties are protected against the mob urge that occasionally overcomes democracies. That is why the Supreme Court has been traditionally divorced from momentary majorities.

They say that England does not understand our veneration for the Constitution and the Supreme Court. But let us not be deluded. England is a small, homogeneous country, with a most extraordinary sensibility to the infringement of individual liberties, a sensibility which this country by no means feels so keenly. There are no considerable racial minorities in England. Ours are gigantic. There are no lynchings in England, nor is there the police or the gang terror which infests some of our cities. Admit that a series of constitutional interpretations have perhaps changed the spirit which the founding fathers sought to preserve. The Constitution can be changed. There are ways provided for doing so. To change i twill require much deliberation, debate ,time. And what is wrong with deliberation and debate and time? What is the hurry? Under what threat are we living at this instant?

This is no proposal to change the Constitution. This is no proposal to limit the powers of the Supreme Court. This is a proposal to capture the Supreme Court.

There is a constitutional issue in this country, but it has nothing to do with the age of judges.

If all the justices of the Supreme Court had voted during the last four years with Justice Brandeis they could all have been his age, which is eighty, and the-question of retiring them would not have occurred. Or do you think it would?

I., of the six men over seventy, four had been "liberals" and two "conservatives," instead of the other way around, do you think that this program would have been proposed?

The theory that if nine men take ninety days to make up their individual minds, fifteen men will take fewer days to make up their is cabalistic arithmetic. Nine men of sixty can work faster than nine men of seventy, but fifteen men of whom six are over seventy can expedite business in the same time as nine, all of whom are under seventy. Apparently that is the logic.

Don't talk of liberalism! The liberal does not believe that the end justifies the means. Long experience has taught him that the means usually determine the end. No human being can believe in the sincerity of this proposal. It is clever, in a world sick of cleverness and longing for plain talk and simple honesty. Must we begin to examine every message from the President to see whether there is a trick in it somewhere?

Are the opposition in Washington phonographs or are they men? If they are men we shall see another little "willful group." They are a handful, but they can do one thing: They can see that this measure is not rushed through without debate! they can see to it that the country has time to think about this, to talk about it, to debate it on every forum platform, t oact upon it, individually and in groups ,regardless of party. There is the League of Women Voters. It is non-partisan. Let it get out and find out what the people think of this proposal. There is Dr. Gallup. I hope he is already busy making his poll.

* * *

Let us see whether the country which undoubtedly wants the objectives of the New Deal, wants to have them put through by a one-man show.

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE IN CITY

Home Occupied by Hunt Family Ruined by Flames

A house owned by Albert Litsen and cocupied by Merrill Hart, located on North Sixth street, was destroyed by fire Wednesday evening. The fire was unnoticed until the flames had spread through the entire roof.

A patrolman first noticed the smoke and flames issuing from the house and immediately called the fire department. The trucks arrived on the scene promptly but the fire had already enveloped the entire attic and had burned through the roof. Despite efforts to bring the fire under control, the flames consumed virtually all of the building. Part of the contents of the house, however, were saved from the flames. There was no insurance on the property.

Members of the Hunt family, living in the home, were entirely unaware of the fire until notified by the patrolman. Although the flames belched forth from the attic in great volumes, there was no smoke in the living quarters.

RELIEF APPEAL GETS RESULTS

Response Generous, Red Cross Doing Fine Job in Flood Area

At the close of business February 6 the total contributions to the flood relief fund, as reported at Red Cross National Headquarters, had reached $16,755,000.

The response to the Red Cross appeal in behalf of flood sufferers in the Ohio and Mississippi river valleys exceeds in generosity and spontaneity anything that has been experienced in recent years by the national organization, and again demonstrates the ability of Red Cross to respond to the call for service in a great national dissater.

The latest reports from members of the national staff on duty throughout the flood area show that 987,000 persons have been affected to date by the flood. About 650,000 persons are being cared for by the Red Cross in 878 concentration centers, 305 field hospitals and medical clearing depots. Over 1700 Red Cross nurses and 520 experienced disaster relief workers are on duty in flood areas. These figures reflect the size of the job at the present time and do not take into consideration the possible developments in the near future.

The Red Cross effort which has been directed almost entirely to the emergency phase of the relief operations during the last two weeks will shortly be directed to the task of rehabilitation. Great numbers of the refugees now in concentration camps will not be able to return to their homes for a period of weeks or longer. They must be cared for in the meantime and assisted as they return to establish their homes.

Among the contributions received by the local Red Cross Chapter the past week was $2.60 from the children of the Thompson school, $3.25 from the Miller school, $2.25 from the Maple Grove school, $5.65 from the Junior Red Cross of the Whitedale school, and $20 was contributed by the Thompson Mother's club.

To date $932.42 has been remitted by the Schoolcraft County Chapter.

CITY MANAGER GIVES ADDRESS

Tells B&PW Club Origin of Government Used in Manistique

"City Management" was interestingly discussed by City Manager P. H. Beauvais in an address to the Manistique Business and Professional Women's club at the Legion cottage Wednesday evening.

Mr. Beauvais traced the history of the city manager form of government. This system is known as the Lockport plan", the city manager asserted, and was originated in 1908 at Staughton, Virginia, with Charles A. Ashburner, now of Stockton, California, as the first city manager.

Until 1916, only 16 cities operated under this plan but today there are 468 cities in the United States, four cities in Ireland, two in Porto Rico and one in Cuba operating under this system, the club women were told by Mr. Beauvais. Records indicate that 87 per cent of the city managers are men hired from outside the communities because they have no particular friends or business interests to favor.

"Business firms sell stock and pay dividends," Beauvais said, "but a city collects taxes and gives services which is intended for the welfare of everyone."

Some of the duties of the city manager were explained by Mr. Beauvais as follows: enforce the laws and ordinances of the city and state, prepare a budget of net expenses for the ensuing year, supervise the operation of the various departments of the city to see that they are functioning properly and keeping within the limits of their appropriations, keep the council informed of the condition of the several funds of the city.

Mr. Beauvais is a charter member of the organization of City Managers.

Mrs. B. A. Foley of Laurium, a member of the Business and Professional Womne's club, formerly Bernadette Wall, attended the meeting.

The percentage of the student body who are members of the S. A. for the second semester will be highest in history.

As a result of the successful campaign, new basketball suits will be purchased for the Manistique high school basketball team. The suits will be available at least for the district tournament here, if not sooner, it was said at the school.

NEWBERRY TRIO TO SPEAK HERE

Local Affirmatives Will Debate Luce Team Monday

The Manistique high school debate team, consisting of Priscilla Powers, Harold Cockram, Jr., and Merill Johnson, will meet Newberry in a special debate at the Manistique high school Monday evening. The debate will have no bearing on the Manistique team's bid for the upper peninsula debate championship.

The Manistique trio will uphold the affirmative side of the electric utilities question while the Newberry term will argue the negative side of the issue. The debate which is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m. Monday evening is without charge to the public, it was announced yesterday by Principal Carl Olson.

In the afternoon the Manistique freshmen negative team will meet the Newberry freshmen affirmative team. This debate will start at three o'clock.

As the debates will have no standing in the peninsula debate league championship race, team coaches James Green of Newberry and Preston Tanis of Manistique, as well as Supt. of Schools A. F. Hall, of Manistique, will act as judges.

Next Thursday evening the Manistique affirmative team will oppose the Gladstone negative team at the Manistique high school in a debate that is particularly important for the local speakers. A defeat would automatically eliminate Manistique from the debate championship race. There are still eight teams in the peninsula eligible for the championship but a victory for Manistique next Thursday would place the local trio in the semi-finals.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—General Motors and United States Steel provided the main fireworks today in a stock market celebration of the peace agreement in the strike against the big automobile company.

Waves of buying around the opening and toward the close, concentrating in motor, steel and a few seelcted issues, lifted General Motors nearly 3 and whirled "big steel" up more than 4 to a new recovery peak within a fraction of 110. Both closed around the day's tops, General Motors finishing at 70 3-8.

Under cover of the leading motor and steel shares, tape-readers saw indications of selling in many issues. Final prices were well scrambled, with numerous losses of fractions to more than a point.

While more shares showed losses than gains at the end, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks touched a new top since April, 1931, at 73.8, up .3.

First-grade bonds, including U. S. Treasury issues, were droopy again. Commodities stuck to a narrow, uneven path. Cotton was 15 to 35 cents a bale higher. Wheat at Chicago lost 1-8 to ½ and corn ¼ to ¾ cents a bushel.

U. S. Steel Up

Bulls turned chiefly to steel shares. U. S. Steel starred in the late performance. Bethlehem followed with an advance of more than 2 to 91¼, also a new recovery top, and Republic, National, Inland, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and Superior rose about 1 to nearly 5.

After a sixteen minute delay at the opening, necessitating intervention of an exchange official to help make a market, General Motors got off to a flying start on 10,000 shares at 70, up 2½, and set the day's trading pace with a turnover of some 113,000 shares. It bettered the early price a bit in the last half hour.

Other motor shares, which had pushed forward in previous sessions, were obscured. Chrysler yielded most of an earlier gain to close only fractionally higher at 134.

Bolstered by brisk trading in steel shares, transactions totalled 2,916,990 shares against 2,912,120 in the preceding session.

Outstanding among gainers were American Telephone at 183, Allied Chemical at 239¼, American Can at 109¼, Northern Pacific at 32, Union Pacific at 134, McKeesport Tin Plate at 88½, Kennecott at 63¼, Lima Locomotive at 79 7-8, Monsanto Chemical at 98¾, Du Pont at 175¾ and Munsingwear at 36¼.

Industrial Shares Lead Curb Upward

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Industrial shares swung upward in the curb market today in response to the General Motors strike settlement but profit selling in the final hour cut or erased many gains.

Some selected stocks held near the day's highs, however. Jones & Laughlin, at 119½, was up 6½, and National Gypsum added 5 at 80. Specialties gaining included Dow Chemical 147 7-8, up 1 3-8; Twin Coach 24¾, up 1¼; and Safety Car Heating & Lighting 128, up 2.

Utilities lagged behind for the most part. Northern States Power "A" slipped 1½ at 38½ and United Light & Power preferred "A" at 65, was 1 5-8 lower. Other losers of a point or more included American Cyanamid "B" 32 1-8, Newmont 128, Pepperell 137, and Detroit Steel Products 62½.

Transactions totalled 782,000 shares against 895,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Feb. 11—Confronting suspension of trade tomorrow on American exchanges, whereas Winnipeg and Liverpool will be open, pre-holiday profit-taking pulled prices here down late today.

From an early upturn of 1 1-8 cents, Chicago wheat values receded 1 5-8, but rallied a little at the last. The temporary gain carried the market up to $1.36 3-4 a bushel for Chicago May delivery, almost equaling the season's peak record.

Indications of persistent European continental demand for wheat, especially on the part of Germany, furnished incentive to buyers of wheat futures. On the other hand, the fact of a holiday tomorrow served decidedly to restrict new purchases, and to induce profit-taking sales.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1-8 to ½ under yesterday's finish, May 1.35 3-8 to 1.35½, July 1.17 1-8 to 1.17¼, September 1.13¾ to 1.13 8-8, corn ¼ to 3-4 down, May 1.09 to 1.09 1-8, July 1.03½ to 1.03 5-8, September 96 8-8, oats ¼ to 5-8 off, May 50½ to 50 5-8, and rye showing ¼ to 3-8 decline, May 1.11¼. Provisions results were unchanged to 15 cents advance.

BY STEPHEN DICKINSON
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Although the weight of offerings resulted in more losses than gains in the bond market today, there was plenty of evidence of support in most sections of the list.

High grade liens continued to give way and losses ruled the U. S. government sector. Federal issues lost 1-32 to 6-32 of a point on somewhat heavier volume than of late.

The high grade corporate list declined fractionally with such loans as American Telephone 3¼s off ¼ at 100, Anaconda 4½s off ¼ at 105¾ and Santa Fe 4s off 1½ at 111½ typical of the session. The Associated Press averages for 10 bonds of this type lost .2 of a point to 111.6.

Other domestic corporate issues were mixed generally with the widest swings on the down side. In the rail quarter, Alleghany 5s stamped lost 1 to 68, Rock Island 4s dropped 1½ to 40½, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s dipped ¾ to 79 1-8 and Erie 5s closed off 1¼ to 86½. Erie general lien 4s soared 5 1-8 to 96 and Illinois Central 4¾s gained 1¼ to 7-8.

Such industrials as Walworth 4s, U. S. Rubber 5s, Texas Corp 3½s and Armour 4½s lost fractionally to a point. Bethlehem Steel 4½s and McKesson & Robbins 5½s improved a little.

Paramount Pictures 6s stood out with a 2¼-point reversal to 103¼, following a sharp runup Wednesday o nrumors of a refunding program which supposedly would be beneficial to holders of the 6s. Baldwin Locomotive bonds were buoyant with several showing wide gains.

The utility list was well supported and most of the active loans there closed about even or a little improved.

Further progress was made by foreign obligations. Polish, Italian and South American bonds closed fractionally to several points higher.

Turnover totalled $15,009,000 face value, for all bonds, against $13,294,000 Wednesday.

Little Giants Play St. Joseph Here This Evening

Gladstone Closes Home Sked With Gwinn Today

Gladstone, Mich. — Gladstone high school cagers tonight play them last home game of the season with Gwinn furnishing the opposition.

In a preliminary Nahma will clash with George Ferguson's reserve quintet.

Although Gladstone is seriously handicapped by the loss of McIntyre, out of play by a broken ankle until probably about tournament time, the locals are favored to win tonight. Gwinn has shown very little all season and son Gladstone, although far weaker than at mid-season, is expected to take the game with little trouble.

Coach Eldon Keil has been experimenting with various combinations for several weeks in an effort to smooth the team's play but thus far the work has availed little.

As a result, Keil indicated yesterday that he will use the same starting lineup as in the past several games, Hoover and Holm at forward, Meyskins at center, and Zervic and Gabe at guard.

'STIQUE PLAYS NEWBERRY FIVE

Large Crowd of Fans to Make Trip to Luce County Seat

Manistique—Coach Bernard McNutt will take his basketball team to Newberry tonight in an effort to gain revenge from the Indians for the defeat suffered by the Emeralds at the hands of Newberry here several weeks ago. The reserve teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary.

A large delegation of Manistique fans, spurred by the classy basketball displayed by the Emeralds in recent weeks, will make the trip to Newberry to witness the game. The Pep Club of the school has chartered a special bus to make the trip and many local residents also plan to drive to Newberry to see the game.

Newberry proved distinctly superior to Manistique in the first game played between the teams several weeks ago but since then the Emeralds have taken a new lease on life and have bowled over Soo, Marquette Normal Frosh and Rock's Little Giants in succession. As a matter of fact, they haven't tasted defeat since the last Newberry game.

The starting lineup for the Emeralds will probably be: Slough, center; Morrison and Anderson, forwards; and Eggertsen and Dugas guards. Rhodes, slippery forward, is certain to be one of the first substitutes sent into the fray, Coach McNutt intimated.

COL. RUPPERT STANDING PAT

Flatly Refuses to Meet Demands of Five Star Ball Players

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Col. Jacob Ruppert today flatly refused to meet the salary demands of five revolting New York Yankee players and advised them to sign at a reasonable figure or suffer the consequences.

"I'll put a ball club on the field this spring no matter what happens," the Colonel fumed. "I've taken a definite stand on this and I'll see it through."

Ruppert revealed that First Baseman Lou Gehrig had been ofered $31,000 and was asking $50,000; Pitcher Red Ruffing had been offered $15,000 (a $3,000 raise) and wants $30,000; Outfielder Jake Powell, $7,500, and demanded $14,000, and Pitcher Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, $7,500 (a $12,500 cut). Gomez sent his contract back without comment.

"I can understand how a man and his employer can be a few thousand dollars apart on a single year's salary," said Ruppert. "But when a man asks $19,000 a year more, that's another thing."

When Ruppert revealed the extent of Gehrig's demands, Lou pointed out in a formal statement that the Yankees haven't needed a reserve first baseman for 12 years, and because of this they were in a position last year to sell three first basemen for a reported price of $105,000.

Must Be Limit

Furthermore, Gehrig added, "I yielded to the Colonel's wishes during the depression years, and now that recovery is well on its way, as the past season's near-record attendance indicates. I feel I am only asking what I believe to be my value to the club."

To this Ruppert asserted:

"In the first place, it's none of Gehrig's business what I do with my ball players. I've spent a fortune to develop the system which develops these players. And as far as Lou's salary is concerned, I gave him what he wanted two years ago.

"When I sent him his contract at that time, it was for $30,000. He asked for $31,000 and got it."

Ruppert said when Gehrig conferred with him about salary originally, he (Ruppert) reminded Lou that Mickey Cochrane was only getting around $28,000 for catching and managing the Detroit Tigers.

"I'm not trying to beat these players down," he added. "I think anybody in baseball will tell you I've never been measly. But there has to be a limit somewhere."

"They'll make those demands reasonable, sign and convince me they're satisfied—or else," he stormed. "And they'll play their best ball, too. I'm not going to start the season with any dissatisfied ball players on my team, even if I have to bring a lot of youngsters in from other clubs. There isn't a man on the team who can't be replaced."

St. Joe Cagers Are Presented to Local Fans

St. Joseph fans rate Ed Gleich, stocky guard, one of the best defensemen in the Class C division this year.

Gleich is 17 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gleich. He is a brother of Dr. Gordon Gleich, former St. Joseph player and coach of years ago. Ed is five feet ten inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. His home is at 426 South Ninth Street.

In addition to playing regular left guard on the basketball team, he was a member of the football team for two years.

Canadiens Defeat Red Wings By 3-2

Montreal, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens made their final home stand against the dangerous Detroit Red Wings a successful one tonight by staging a third-period uprising to take a 3 to 2 victory in a National Hockey League engagement.

The victory, achieved before 7,500 fans, shot the Flying Frenchmen nine points in front of their idle fellow townsmen, the Maroons, in the league's International division, and made the Wings' lead in the American division a decidedly shaky one.

Although the Canadiens' "old men" put them in the scoring column in the first period with a goal by Johnny Gagnon, assisted by Aurel Joliat and Al Mondou, the club's youngsters put the clincher on in the final session.

After Detroit had tied it up with a tally in the second period, Joffre Desilets and George Mantha banged home goals within two minutes of each other in the third period to sew up the game. Hec Kilrea scored Detroit's second goal in the last minute.

Blackhawks Beat Rangers By 5-2

Chicago, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks, fighting for a Stanley cup playoff berth, scored three quick goals in the second period tonight and then added two more in the final stanza to defeat the New York Rangers, 5 to 2, before a slim crowd of 7,500 spectators.

The surprising Hawks, who defeated the New York Americans, 5 to 1, last Sunday night, swarmed all over the Rangers in their second period scoring. After Keeling had put the Rangers in front, Chicago scored three goals within two minutes. Kelly knotted the score and then Seibert and Thompson scored on rebounds.

In the last period March raced in at right wing to beat Davie Kerr, who had trouble all evening, after which Dillon scored the second Ranger goal with help from Lynn Patrick.

LOCALS SEEK ANOTHER WIN

Parochials Will Attempt to Avenge Two Losses of Last Season

The fare for local basketball fans at the junior high school this evening will be furnished by St. Joseph cagers and the Little Giants of Rock. The game, scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock, will be preceded by a preliminary.

St. Joseph and Rock have met on the basketball court for several years, with the Little Giants having the best of the argument a majority of the times. The Parochials are particularly anxious to turn tables this year to avenge the double defeat handed them by the Rock boys last year.

Coach Kohlman's team started slow this year but of late has been developing rapidly, winning an even number of games against strong competition. The Little Giants, on the other hand, have had one of their poorest seasons in history and the Parochials believe their time for victory has come.

The St. Joe mentor undoubtedly will use his usual lineup which will include McCarthy and Krummel at forwards, Faber at center and Boddy and Gleich at guards. Others to see action will be Menard, Stacey and Luskin.

Although the Rock lineup is unknown, it is likely that it will include Norden at center, Carlson and Gibbs at forwards, and I. Pilon and Trombly guards. Others to see action will be L. Pilon, Maki, Carlson, Peltonen and Turunen.

BARAGA BEATS MATHERS, 19-14

Superiority on Charity Tosses Gives Seger's Outfit Victory

Munising, Feb. 11 — Mather high school cagers bowed to Baraga Parochial squad, 19-14, at the Sidney-Adam's gym at Marquette last night. Hampered by the loss of Pangborn in the second frame the Mather quintet were able to outscore the Baraga five in only the last quarter. The Mather five lost the game on fouls failing to make more than 6 out of their 14 chances from the free throw line, while the Parochials dropped 11 out of 17 through the hoop. The game was a tight defensive one, both teams making only 4 baskets during the whole game.

Interference Rule May Be Changed By Coaches

BY BOB CAVAGNARO

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—When the football rules go to the clinic at Absecon, N. J. tomorrow night a major operation may be performed on the forward pass interference regulation.

This is the rule which almost deprived Dartmouth her second straight victory over Yale and held the Green to a tie with Princeton as well as being a deciding factor in Navy's defeat of Army. It probably will occupy most of the three-day conference of the rules committee of the N. C. A. A. and its advisory groups of coaches and officials.

The American Football Coaches' Association last week recommended that bodily contact between two or more eligible players making a "simultaneous effort to catch or bat the ball" not be construed as interference.

May Create Zone

Another proposed solution, which will be given consideration, is to create a zone for the passer, perhaps fifteen yards, behind the line of scrimmage. Under current rules the forward passer may throw the ball from any point five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Last fall it was not uncommon to see a passer fade back twenty or twenty five yards to give receivers a chance to get down the field and in the clear to receive a long, looping pass.

"In cases like that," said a member of the committee, "the defensive backs are given ample notice of who is going to receive the pass, with the result a couple of defenders surround the receiver. Usually, that's when interference occurs.

"If a zone is established for the passer it would speed up play. For example, supposing a passer is allowed to drop back no more than 15 yards in all from the line of scrimmage, it would mean he would have to get the pass away much faster, the intended receiver would have to cut down the field faster and there'd be less chance of the defense spotting him."

No Reduction

Whatever the committee does in the way of repairing or rewriting the regulation, it isn't likely the penalty which is now loss of the ball at the point of interference, will be reduced.

"Pass interference caused a lot of heart burns last season and was a tremendous burden on the officials," said William Langford, secretary of the N. C. A. A. committee. "I don't think it would be appropriate to reduce the penalty because if we do we'll just be inviting more interference."

Other rule changes will be considered, among them the coaches' recommendation to shave the "shift" penalty from 15 to 5 yards. The committee's reaction to this may be that a team well drilled in the shift shouldn't have to worry about the penalty. This recommendation came about as the direct result of seven 15-yard penalties being called against Fordham in its game with St. Mary's.

MICHIGAN TECH PLAYS JAYSEES

Bill Groesbeck in Last Basketball Game for Houghton Five

Houghton, Feb. 11.—Determined to close their season with a big victory, Michigan Tech's cagers are drilling hard in preparation for their game here Saturday night with Ironwood Junior college. The Jaqsees defeated the Engineers at Ironwood in December 35-29. Since then, however, Budd, Krohn, Oates, and Jerow have developed into players of real varsity caliber, thus giving Coach Don Sherman adequate replacements.

Captain "Sully" Kolkoski of Iron River, Roger Townsend of Detroit, Pat Cosgrove of L'Anse, and Bill Groesbeck of Escanaba wear the Silver and Gold of Tech for the last time this week. Kolkoski and Groesbeck are guards, Townsend jumps center, and Cosgrove plays forward.

Tech was nosed out by Northern State last week here 30-29 in the last 20 seconds on a free throw. Many Copper Country fans feel that the tale might have been different if Dick Buck, last year's scoring ace who has been out of several games with a broken jaw, had had a longer time to work back into the Tech attack. This week, these observers claim, the Engineer machine should be functioning perfectly and a Tech win is in prospect.

BREWS TO PLAY 'STIQUE QUINT

Locals Play Inlands at Manistique This Evening

Manistique—The Inlands basketball team will meet the Delta Brews of Escanaba at the old gym this evening in the outstanding basketball attraction of the season here to date.

The Delta Brews have played many of the top ranking cage teams of the peninsula and have built an enviable record. The team is composed of virtually the same group of cagers who represented the Escanaba Blackhawks last season.

Among the boys who have made basketball history at Escanaba playing with the Delta Brews are the Anderson brothers, Smithwick, W. Erickson and Brazeau. Smithwick and Job Anderson are considered two of the peninsula's finest cagers. Anderson, lanky center, formerly starred with the Eskymos while Smithwick hails from Green Bay.

The Inlands will have in their lineup such well known stars as Garvin, the Berger boys, Dettman brothers, Dewey and Rubick, Manager Paul Vizena reported yesterday.

Communication

Niagara, Wis., Feb. 10.

Sports Editor,
Escanaba Daily Press,

Dear Sir:

I have a junior hockey team which has won a number of games in this locale and I now am eager to book some out-of-town teams, playing either in Niagara or away.

I would appreciate it greatly if you would inform me who to contact for a game or games with an Escanaba team. We have been told that there are some very good teams in your city.

My boys were undefeated last year and to date have won two games from Norway, 8-0 and 5-1, and one from Kingsford, 4-1.

The boys are all in high school and range in ages from 14 through 17. We would prefer to play on Saturday afternoon, either here or there as I said before, but can keep a Sunday appointment. We don't have very good facilities here for hockey but if we entertain an out-of-town team we will do the best we can.

I would appreciate it greatly if you would address me at my home, 532 River street, Niagara, Wis. Guess I forgot to tell you the team is a Niagara outfit, named Niagara Monarchs.

Very truly yours,
John H. LeRoy, Jr.

Dilemma

Brit Hall Drills Fats Hard, Now They Are Leans

Brit Hall, genial coffee salesman, who once played hockey and now contemplates a comeback at the Escanaba Winter Frolic next Sunday afternoon, finds himself in somewhat of a dilemna.

Hall organized a team of fat men to play Pat Gasman's Leans. He has been drilling them so hard the last several days that they have been losing tons of weight. So when the fans go out to the rink Sunday afternoon all they will see is one bunch of skinies playing another bunch of skinnies.

The name of the team will not be changed, however, Brit said last night. It's still the Fats.

Manager Hall has been making trips all over the Upper Peninsula to secure players for his team. Some of them are old-time hockey players with whom he played in the Copper Country league, where the miners started playing the game with the Fort Wilkins soldiers and Isle Royale Indians back in the sixties, using copper nuggets for pucks.

Last week, the lineup consisted of Fat Chynoweth, Ray Olson, Philip Bruce, George Hirn, Tom Shanahan and Manager Hall. Brit began to worry upon hearing rumors that Pat Gasman has a fast team so he put in long distance calls to secure the services of some veteran hockeyists. He revealed that Buddy Woodin, Iron Mountain midget, who gained Hollywood fame in a "Tarzan" picture, has been signed up as goalie, and Leo LaFave and Henry Munch, also of the Ford City, as wingmen. He is also loading up with some Copper Country players, whose names he would not disclose.

Manager Gasman of the Leans also loading up. He sent a telegram yesterday to Taffy Abel, noted hockey star, who is now residing at Sault Ste. Marie, to strengthen his lineup, which apparently is very light.

Oh yes, hot coffee will be served during the game. And the losing manager will sing a song.

COOKS DEFEATS RAPID RIVER 5

Baytowners Nosed Out by 25-24 in Hard Fought Battle

Cooks, Mich., Feb. 11—For the second time this year, Cooks nosed out Rapid River by one point, turning the trick here Tuesday night by a score of 25-24 in a particularly hard fought game which was featured by 30 fouls. In as equally a thrilling preliminary, the Rapid River reserves nosed out the local seconds, 22-20, in an overtime match.

With three minutes of the game left, and the score tied at 21, Mortensen and Haindl dropped in long shots. Boyer of Rapid River made a free throw and, just as the game ended, Archambeau of Rapid, sank a long shot to bring the visitors to within one point of the locals.

Referee Kelly called 16 fouls on Rapid River and 14 on Cooks. H. Knuth of Cooks and Peterson and B. Nelson of Rapid River were lost to their respective teams on fouls late in the game.

TENTH OUTFIT TO BE ADDED

National Pro Football Loop Will Take on Another Team

Chicago, Feb. 11 (AP)—National Professional Football League magnates will take tenth member into the fold tomorrow after listening to oratory by bidders from Cleveland, Boston, Buffalo and Los Angeles.

The addition of a tenth team in football-for-profit's major league will be the main item of business at the annual meeting. The remainder of the two-day session will be devoted to schedule building, election of officers, any player transactions the club-owners may be able to stir up, and formally voting the champion Green Bay Packers the Ed Thorp memorial trophy.

Backers of the Cleveland Roms who operated in the shaky American Pro League last year, appear to have the edge in the scramble for the coveted tenth franchise. Its location would make it a logical members of the league's western division, which has gone along with four teams, to five in the eastern section, for the past three years.

Boston, which lost its membership last December when George Marshall transferred his Redskins to Washington, is expected to make a brisk bid for another chance. Its chances were considered slim, however, because of Marshall's reason for moving out—lack of support at the gate.

Buffalo, a prospective member of the western division, will have a huge new stadium as its chief talking point. The Los Anugeles plea, George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, said, probably will be tabled because of transportation problems.

Eskymo Quint Ready To Upset Menominee

Menominee, Mich., Feb. 11.—Escanaba high school cagers will play the Maroons here Friday night in a return game, with the Eskymos seeking revenge for a smarting 25-14 defeat handed them on their own floor earlier in the season.

Coach Bernard McCann's men have been working hard in anticipation of one of the stiffest games scheduled for the season, with determination that Escanaba will not break the Maroon winning streak that now counts six consecutive victories.

On Championship Trail

The Escanaba and Menominee reserve teams will play starting at 7:30 o'clock, and the main event is scheduled for 8:30.

In the first game at Escanaba the Maroons downed the Eskymos for the first time there since 1931, and definitely set their feet on a comeback trail that is expected to lead to the district championship.

Coach McCann is expected to start the "old reliables" Friday night. Deschaine and Carlander will be at forward positions, Delsipee at center and Piper and Porth at guard.

In the game at Escanaba, where the Maroons tipped over the dope bucket, the game for the first three quarters went nip and tuck until Deschaine started a late scoring spree that set the Eskymos in a panic. Escanaba began tossing shots from all over the floor, few of which connected, while Menominee broke through their defense to edge in winning baskets.

LOCALS SEEK UPSET

Coach Carl Nordberg last night said that his Eskymo cagers are all set to tip over the dope bucket by turning in a victory over Menominee in the latters' new gym this evening.

Nordberg will very likely use Burnell and Karas at guards, Abrahamson at center and Johnson and Gangstad at forwards. Others making the trip will be Embs, Frederickson, Holmes, Olson, Peterson, Hurley and Sivertsen.

Wolverines Urge Wild Life Research Station

Meeting in the Sherman hotel last evening the Wolverine Conservation association passed a resolution urging the establishment of a cooperative wild life research station in the upper peninsula. The meeting also resulted in the local conservationists outlining a plan to protect the one buck deer law.

The club voted to affiliate with the Michigan Conservation Council to the end that the various conservation minded bodies in the state may have an organization that will enable the presentation of a united front on questions which have a bearing on the wildlife resources of the state.

Nels Jensen was delegated to get in touch with Senator James Dotsch in an effort to block passage of any bills which might endanger the present one-buck deer law insofar as it affects the upper peninsula. Other clubs in the upper peninsula will be sounded out for sentiment on proposed changes in the deer hunting laws.

Little discussion preceded the passage of a motion pledging the cooperation of the Wolverine group with the Chamber of Commerce and all other groups in the staging of the 1937 Smelt Jamboree.

Polution of the waters of Bay de Noc by industrial wastes was blamed for the lack of fish in the section of the bay below Gladstone in a discussion that occupied the major portion of the meeting. The president of the association was directed, in a motion, to appoint a three man committee to investigate all angles of the situation and report at the next meeting.

Following is the resolution relative to the establishment of a wildlife research station in the peninsula. The resolution has been adopted by the conservation committee of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce and the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and other sportsmen's and conservation groups in the peninsula will be asked to cooperate in securing such an establishment.

Whereas, wild life resources are of tremendous value to the resorts and recreational development of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, and

Whereas, many unsolved problems are fasing the upland game resources of the Upper Peninsula, such as the deer food problem, the partridge cycle, the prairie chicken cycle and the predatory animal problem, and

Whereas, many agencies including the U. S. Forest Service, the U. S. Biological Survey, the Michigan Department of Conservation, the University of Michigan and Michigan State college are now carrying on individual research on these many upland game problems, and

Whereas, there is no central headquarters for this work in the Upper Peninsula, and

Whereas, the state of Wisconsin has the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, and the state of Minnesota has the U. S. Forest Experiment station at St. Paul, therefore be it

Resolved, that a Wild Life Research station be established in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan to provide equipment and facilities for research on upland game problems, and be it further

Resolved, that the aforesaid station be maintained and operated cooperatively by the U. S. Forest Service, the U. S. Biological Survey, the State Department of Conservation, the University of Michigan and Michigan State college, and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be mailed to the Honorable John Luecke, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

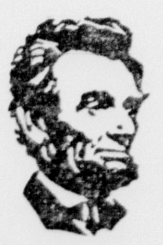
Down Hill to The White House

Abraham Lincoln's road to fame led down hill most of the way. The milestones of his progress were nearly all tombstones, marking the graves of his hopes.

Lincoln was Defeated:

for the Illinois legislature, at 23; ★ for speaker of the Illinois House, at 30; ★ again, for that office, at 32; ★ for Congress, at 34; ★ for presidential elector, at 35; ★ for land office commissioner, at 40; ★ again, for presidential elector, at 43; ★ for the United States Senate, at 46; ★ for Vice President of the United States, at 47; ★ again, for the Senate, at 49.



But, at 52, Abraham Lincoln, the backwoods boy, was President of the United States in the nation's darkest hour, and a "man for the ages". His life is the most shining exemplification of American ideals, and of the power of individual courage and determination.
